Gad Dennis died in the General hospital at 1:40 a. m. today from injuries sustained in a head-on auto collision shortly after noon Friday on U. S route 42, one mile south of Lexington. Physicians said his skull was fractured.

Still confined to the hospital with a fractured arm is his wife Anna, 63. Her condition was reported as "good" this morning.

State highway patrolmen said Mr. and Mrs. Dennis were injured when the machine in which they were passengers, and driven by Rollie Eve, Middletown, collided head-on with a car operated by Harold F Rolf, 43, of Cleveland.

Rolf was charged with careless and reckless driving as the result of the accident. He was released after posting $50 bond for his appearance in municipal court April 27.

State highway patrolmen said today that County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott would be asked to investigate the traffic death, to ascertain whether the case could be laid before the next grand jury for consideration of more serious charges.

Marriott was out of the city today.

Five other persons were injured in week-end traffic accidents in and near Mansfield, none seriously.

William H. Carrier, 39, of 37 Arlington avenue, sustained a head injury, when his car collided with

MUST PREPARE TO USE FORCE

Americas Can Keep Peace Path Open Through Preparedness, President Declares.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Terming wars abroad "more horrible and destructive than ever," President Roosevelt said today the 21 American Republics could keep open the way to eventual peace "only if we are prepared to meet force with force if challenge is ever made."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke before the governing board of the Pan American Union on the observance of the organization's 50th anniversary and proclaimed a determination of the western hemisphere "to live in peace and make that peace secure."

In words broadcast throughout the nation and transmitted abroad by short wave, the president designated no belligerent by name when he used these words apparently directed at recent European developments:

"We of this hemisphere have no need to seek a new international order; we already have found it. This was not won by hysterical outcries, or violent movements of troops.

"We did not stamp out nations capture governments, or uproot innocent people from the homes they had built. We did not invent absurd doctrines of race supremacy, or claim dictatorship through universal revolution.

"The inter-American order was not built by hatred and terror. It has been paved by the endless and effective work of men of good will."

Mr. Roosevelt said "universal and stable peace remains a dream" and told his listeners to "have no illusions" at a time when "old dreams of universal empire are again rampant."

"In my conception," the president said, "the whole world now is struggling to find the basis of its life in coming centuries."

Clue Furnished by Shoe Store Manager Leads to Arrest; One Man Kin of Victim.

Charged with the daylight holdup of Philip Schmutzler last Friday in which they obtained more than a thousand dollars, three Ellwood City, Pa., men were held in jail here today.

They were returned from New Castle, Pa, where they were arrested, shortly before noon by Mansfield authorities who said they had obtained confessions from all three and recovered all but $20 of the loot.

Police and Schmutzler today said that the trio's total loot, at first estimated at $1,140, was actually a hundred dollars more. The amount recovered, they said, was $1,220.

The men's names were given by Police Chief Meade K. Bates as Vincent A. Carbeau and William Justine, both 28, and Rocco Cusato, 24. All are charged with armed robbery.

Bates said Carbeau was Schmutzler's nephew by marriage, and a frequent visitor to Mansfield though he had never lived here. He said Carbeau admitted driving the hold-up machine last Friday. He was not one of the pair who took part in the actual robbery, police said.

The car and all three men were identified by Jeffries who accompanied authorities on the trip. Schmutzler, who also went along, identified Cusato and Justine as the pair who held him at gun's point and robbed him of his wal-

If the report is true, Germany will have but one pocket battleship left in commission. She started the war with three. TORSO SLAYING VICTIM FOUND

Police Link Death With New York Investigation of Murder, Inc.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—The torso and legs of a man wrapped in burlap bags were found early today in an alley behind a West Madison street undertaking establishment. Police believed the victim might have been Sholem Bernstein of New York who had been reported sought by gangsters associated with Murder, Inc.

Dectetive Sgt. Joseph Haska, who was detailed to search for Bernstein after New York Prosecutor William O'Dwyer had warned authorities that he was a "marked man," was assigned to investigation of the slaying. Haska said he believed the Bernstein theory was "a damned good hunch."

Authorities said they also would investigate a possible connection with the Cleveland series of torso murders. The last Cleveland torso slaying was discovered about a year and one-half ago. The "mad butcher of Kingsbury run" has not been apprehended.

SUB ATTACKS BRITISH SHIP

Freighter 300 Miles From Halifax Sends Out SOS Distress Signal.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—A submarine attack on the British freighter Graig approximately 800 miles northeast of New York was indicated today in two fragmentary wireless messages.

The first message, picked up by MacKay radio here at 4:55 a. m. (EST) said:

"SSS—SSS. 40.43 N., 57.24 W., Graig. Sub coming close."

An hour and fifteen minutes later MacKay said the Canadian government station at Camperdown, N. S., reported receiving a second call from the Graig, a 3,683-ton vessel.

This gave an "SOS" distress call which the Canadian station interpreted as indicating attack but no further details."

The position given would have placed the vessel, registered from Cardiff, Wales, and owned by the Graig Shipping company of London, about 300 miles southeast of Halifax, N. S

County Farmers Will Have To Work Overtime This Spring

Their spring activities virtually at a standstill because of the cold weather, Richland county farmers will have to work overtime to catch up when the weather gets warm, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

Snow and the abnormal cold have delayed farm operations at least two weeks and retarded pasture crops which have an important bearing on the spring milk production, he pointed out. Pastures in Ohio are about 73 per cent of normal.

County farmers have just started their plowing and Ganyard said there has been no oats sown yet. Under normal conditions, most of the plowing is done and oats sowing is well under way by the middle of April. Corn planting is almost certain to be late, it was said.

Despite the heavy snowfall during the past winter and frequent rains this spring, rainfall in this area is still an inch below normal, the county agent added.

The county's wheat "is looking better than expected" Ganyard reported, although it was off to a slow start last fall because of the drought and was damaged by the extreme cold during the winter. The state crop reporting service forecast a wheat crop in Ohio of about 34,510,000 bushels this year as compared with 37,070,000 last year.

Allies Land at Several Points, London Reports

Navy Continues To Rain Blows Against Invaders, Reports Admiral Scheer Torpedoed; German Drive Near Oslo Sets Norwegians Back.

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM—(INS)—British troops and marines have landed at Narvik, driving German occupational forces back along the iron ore railway toward the Swedish frontier, according to word received in Stockholm late today.

(By Associated Press)

Great Britain announced today that her forces "now have landed at several points in Norway" while the combined might of British sea and air strength rained new blows on the German invaders.

Disclosure that troops had arrived raised the veil on how Britain intended to fulfill her pledge to the embattled Norsemen that "help is coming."

It also explained the ferocity of Britain's week-end raids on Germany's footholds in Norway, especially at Narvik, where the British reported seven German destroyers sunk Saturday, and at Stavanger, where British warplanes have made repeated raids.

Not only were the British striking at Germany's sea lines of communication with her expeditionary army, it appeared, but also were covering transports bearing her own troops and supplies to Norway.

Where the British landed or in what number was not divulged by the war office and admiralty, but it was believed in London that Narvik and Stavanger were logical jumping-off points for the British

Britain previously had given no confirmation to recurring rumors that her forces were on the way to battle the Germans.

Both sides, meanwhile, reported new successes in the far-flung fighting.

Britain declared two German transports were sunk and that

Berlin Denies British Land Troops

BERLIN—(INS)—At 5 p. m. today (10 a. m. E.S.T.), authentic German military information said:

"Up to the present moment no single enemy soldier or sailor has landed at any coastal point in Norway where German troops stand."

Earlier, competent military sources said that the British were expected to try to invade some of the Norwegian fjords and attempt landings "for reasons of prestige."

(Editor's note: British announcement that forces had been landed in Norway was made shortly after 7:30 a. m. E.S.T.)

OUTLAW: Nazis Call Haakon British Vassal, Outlaw Him

BERLIN—(INS)—Nazi Germany today outlawed King Haakon of Norway as a "vassal of England," predicted early Italian participation in the war and threatened devastating aerial attacks upon the British Isles.

In a series of press and official pronouncements which included a hint of some spectacular move by Spain, the Reich forecast that Britain would suffer for encouraging Norway to resistance.

Now that Norway has been occupied, the newspaper Nachtausgabe said, Germany has gained immense advantages for air force operations against Britain

Possibility of Italian participation was based on a broadcast by Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of the newspaper Telegrafo of Rome and a close adviser of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

In his speech, heavily featured by the Berlin press, Ansaldo said that Italian involvement was a matter of days or weeks and that "the bugles will sound soon."

Possibility of Spanish action was based upon what the German press described as an "extraordinary midnight meeting of the war council in Madrid."

MANEUVER: Italian Fleet Reported At Base Off Turkey

LONDON—(UP)—Balkan diplomats have received reports that Italy has quietly concentrated a fleet in its Dodecanese islands off the Turkish coast at the eastern end of the Mediterranean about 400 miles from the Suez canal, it was understood today.

According to the reports, the fleet was concentrated while Germany was invading Scandinavia and in the belief of diplomats it was part of an agreed "axis" which would tend to restrain the allies and Turkey from moving against Germany in the Balkans while Adolf Hitler was trying to secure domination in Scandinavia

Presumably, diplomats suggested, the move was intended to keep the allied near eastern armies under French Gen Maxime Weygand on guard around the Suez canal and at the same time to warn Turkey not to permit allied naval units to enter the Black sea through the Dardanelles for operations in the Danubian area.

Balkan diplomats seemed convinced that Germany soon would inform Danubian countries that she had decided to send a strong force of gunboats to patrol the river and protect German shipments of Rumanian and Russian oil. They forecast that if Germany took such action, the allies would ask Turkey for permission to send naval units into the Black sea

Believe Roosevelt Has Decided Against Third Term

M'NUTT GIVEN PERMISSION TO OPEN CAMPAIGN

Public Approval of Garner Candidacy Given By House Leader.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A growing belief that President Roosevelt has decided against running for a third term spread through the capitol today after two significant Democratic developments over the week-end.

One development was a formal announcement by Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt that he is taking a three-weeks furlough "with the approval of the president" to tour the nation in the interests of his own candidacy for the Democratic nomination. McNutt predicts his campaign "on the condition that President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a third term."

The other was a public declaration by Rep. Sam Rayburn, the president's leader in the House, urging Texans to support Vice President John Nance Garner for the Democratic nomination.

Declaring his personal loyalty to the president and the New Deal, Rayburn called Garner the 'most distinguished citizen of Texas since Sam Houston"—but said nothing at all about a third term. Both are strong supporters of the president; both have contacted him recently; both assert the president can be renominated if he wishes. Under these circumstances, observers feel McNutt would not campaign actively for the nomination, and that Rayburn would not endorse Garner—unless each has some information indicating the president proposes to retire to private life when his present term ends.

Changes Stand.

The McNutt development has additional significance, in that the president personally gave the Indianan permission to campaign for the Democratic nomination. Last July, the president announced that no appointive officer of the government — meaning McNutt — would be permitted to campaign for the presidency. Now, the president gives McNutt a leave of absence, so that the Indianan may conduct his campaign.

The security administrator will visit every state, he announces, "except those which are supporting a favorite son candidate."

Expect Blessing.

Friends of McNutt hint that he may yet receive the president's blessing for the Democratic nomination. They point out the president twice before has honored McNutt with surprise appointments to high office—first as high commissioner to the Philippines and then as security administrator. Now, they add, the president has given him permission to test Democratic reaction on his candidacy.

The Rayburn development was less significant, because of his long friendship for Garner. Rayburn, however, has been silent about Garner's candidacy until a group of Texans began a third term campaign in their home state. The Rayburn declaration was to Mayor Tom Miller, of Austin, a third term leader.

After asserting his own loyalty to Roosevelt, Rayburn praised Garner's great record of public achievement and closed with:

"I think all these things considered, that his fellow citizens of Texas should honor him (Garner) by sending a delegation to the national convention instructed to vote for him for the Democratic nomination for president."

State Publicity Board To Draft Opening Program

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The commission created by the general assembly to tell the world about Ohio's recreational and industrial advantages meets here today to select a secretary and draft a preliminary program.

The six members of the commission, known as the Ohio Development and Publicity Commission, were appointed a week ago by Governor John W. Bricker although the commission was created by the legislature last summer.

The legislature appropriated $20,000 to get the commission through its first two years and stipulated that it could not pay its secretary more than $3600 a year.

Members of the commission are: Col William M. Mumm, Columbus; Dwight D. Hatcher, Toledo; Reno G. Hoag, Marietta; Justin A. Rollman, Cincinnati; Peter K. Tadsen Port Clinton, and Horton H. Hampton, Cleveland.

NAVAL EXPANSION BILL GETS SENATE CONSIDERATION TODAY

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The senate turned itself into a court of admirals today to begin consideration of the biggest navy bills in history.

A $655,000,000 fleet expansion bill, predicated on the navy's contention that Uncle Sam must be prepared to meet the strongest naval combination of enemies that could be mustered, and the $9663,797,478 navy supply bill, were the measures commanding attention.

Europe's warfare sharpened the debate, centered on the old issue of warships versus airplanes. News dispatches of sinking cruisers and destroyers, with battleships still riding the waves, lent weight to arguments that this government must build bigger floating forts.

Public hearings on the expansion bill, anticipating construction of 21 combat ships and 22 auxiliaries were scheduled to start before the senate naval affairs committee today. This bill has passed the house, as has the $963,797,478 supply bill, on which senate action was scheduled for later this week.

Despite opposition, administration supporters appeared powerful enough to pass both bills. Republicans, and the Democratic economy advocates admitted there was little chance of whittling down either measure.

AWAIT VERDICT

Steubenville Mayoralty Rivals Expect Decision Soon.

STEUBENVILLE—(INS)— Judge Clarence Ahl, of Crawford county, who heard a month's testimony in the Steubenville mayoralty election contest, arrived in Steubenville today and immediately began dictating his opinion which will be read in Common Pleas court this week.

Judge Ahl will decide whether the election last Nov. 7, of James T. Welsh, Democrat, as mayor, was legal, or whether the petition of Charles E. Baker, Welsh's Republican opponent who asked the court to set aside the Democrat's election as illegal and declare Baker the duly elected mayor, would be sustained.

Hundreds of ballots cast for both Baker and Welsh were assailed as illegal during the 33-day hearing. The conduct of election officials also was an issue.

SEAMEN DEMAND WAGE INCREASE SHORTER HOURS

Union Faces Federal Action For Violation of Labor Disputes Law.

(By United Press)

TORONTO — Striking Canadian seamen faced federal action today after halting all Canadian Great Lakes shipping a few hours before the 1940 navigation season officially opened.

Nearly 6,500 members of the Canadian Seamen's union struck in 15 lake ports at midnight for pay raises, shorter work day, bigger crews, union representation aboard ship and the closed shop. The government said the strike was in violation of a federal law and the union replied with a threat to extend it to 2,500 workers on the docks and grain elevators.

Union officials said they had tied up about 275 lake boats and that no cargoes would be loaded for Great Lakes shipment at any Canadian port from Fort William, Ont., to the Gaspe peninsula.

The union demanded a $15 a month wage increase, delegates aboard ships to act as intermediaries between crews and officers and three more men on each vessel.

The 11 companies affected said that the wage increase demand would total more than the 1939 earnings of the largest company.

Deputy Minister of Labor William Dickson told J. A. Sullivan, president of the union, that the strike was a violation of the industrial disputes investigations act because the dispute had not been submitted to arbitration. Sullivan charged that the department of labor favors ship owners.

Bar Closed Shop.

A joint statement issued by four ship owners said the closed shop is not permitted on ships in any part of the world because of the necessity of maintaining discipline.

The statement said union delegates aboard ships would be unacceptable. Union officials replied that previous agreements had provided for delegates and preferential hiring and that the delegates had strict instructions not to interfere with discipline.

The CSU has jurisdiction over deep sea seamen but they were not involved. However, union leaders said it was conceivable that they might be involved later "if the situation gets out of hand."

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Nothing Like a Letter From Hope.

Bob Hope, who makes people laugh in the cinema and on the radio, as well as other places too numerous to mention, said he would try to run up a Broadway column, but it would have to start as a letter, because that is the only way he could write to a girl and feel really cosy.

"DEAR DOROTHY: It's really a pleasure to write this column for you . . . after all, you are the only columnist who isn't touring the country with a troupe of movie stars, aren't you?

Of course, you came to the right person when you asked me to write a column about Hollywood. . . . I should be an authority. I have spent all of two years in the cinema. All I know about this burg is what I read in the New York papers, but don't get me wrong. I love Hollywood. . . . Wise man say (no, not Confucius) "Everyman love place where he get good pay and good sunburn." . . . It's great to be a successful actor in Hollywood. . . .

A successful actor is a fellow with a swimming pool and a worried look, but really, I should have no cause to complain, because they're treating me very nice these days at Paramount. They give me carfare now.

Flash!!! the Trocadero opened today.

Flash!!! the Trocadero closed today.

Warner Bros., having produced Dodge City and Virginia City, now face a helluva problem. They want to make a picture titled New York City but production is being held up until the boys decide where to world-premiere it.

FLASH!!! The Trocadero opened and closed today. The proprietors of this famous cafe are installing a revolving padlock.

Mayor LaGuardia must be slipping. . . . Can you imagine anybody wanting (really wanting) Hollywood to move to New York.

Where would writers and actors (who just want to see clean hard rain) go? . . . And wouldn't Broadway look funny with orange trees instead of orange stands in bloom. . . . Tell Hizzoner to lay off Hollywood. . . . Let him stick to women's hats . . . Ah, there's a controversy for you, but let me stick my nose out of it.

Paramount gave me a new dressing room as a result of the success of the "Road to Singapore" . . . Lady, you've never seen anything like it . . . It's a cigar box with a window . . . It's so small every time I look in the mirror my reflection starts to push me. . . . My dressing room overlooks a butcher shop next to the studio. . . . Every time I look over there the hams in the window start muttering about the injustice of it all.

Carole Lombard has a dressing room next to me. The other day I heard a knocking on the wall so I dashed right over. How did I know that Clark Gable smokes a pipe?

There's one feature about my dressing room that I do like. If they don't pick up my option, all I have to do is pull a string, a trap-door opens and I drop into an upper berth on the Chief.

Oh, by the way, have you seen "Gone With the Wind"? There's a nice couple of pictures. I got into see it a little late so I missed the first two days.

Did you hear about the horse Bing Crosby gave me for a gift? Boy, it's a swell horse. Before the race I went down to the paddock to look him over. I handed him a lump of sugar and he turns to me and says, "Don't bother, old boy, Doctor Townsend is taking care of me.

I don't know if you have been to many Hollywood parties during your last trip out here, but throwing a party in Hollywood is an experience that no one should miss. You invite a group of people and they tell you by telephone ten minutes before you go in to eat that they can't come, but it doesn't matter, because another group of people show up. "We're friends of the other folks you asked," they say. "We'll stick around for a while and see if we like it."

They have some novel parties in Hollywood once in a while. Why, recently I went to a party that WASN'T thrown by the Basil Rathbones. It was really a novel party. Everybody was supposed to come as the person they admired most. Nine actors showed up as themselves.

Speaking, Dorothy, as a comedian, Hollywood gives a comic so many subjects to tell old jokes about. There's the movies, the weather, Crosby's clothes, Crosby's horses, Crosby's golf, Crosby's racetrack, Crosby's hair and Crosby.

Things I'd like to see in pictures: John Garfield happy to be alive . . . Don Ameche playing the role of a fellow who never wrote nuthin', never invented nuthin' and, in fact, was nuthin' but nuthin' . . . Basil Rathbone, living through the whole picture. Mae West as Shirley Temple's mother, but not vice versa . . .

Have you ever been to a preview in Hollywood when after the picture is over all the stars leave the theater and the doorman calls for Ronald Coleman's car, Myrna Loy's car, Gary Cooper's car and Bob Hope's bodyguard? Well I thought I'd let you know because if there aren't any laughs in this column I still retain my bodyguard.

Love and kisses

Bob Hope

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

"Stardust" is a bright and ingratiating piece about the youthful quest for fame in Hollywood, in particular about a couple of youngsters played by Darnell and Payne. With Mary Healy, the romantic leads are "discoveries" of a studio talent scout who brings them to Hollywood for screen tests.

As a picture of the processes surrounding such tests, talent scouting in general and the idiosyncracies of movieland, "Stardust" would hold interest for all the screen-struck. Adorned as it is with humor, with good performances and amusing situations and lines, the picture should provide a pleasant time also for those whose interest in filmland is more impersonal.

"A Star Is Born," but of a few seasons ago, exploited the industry with a more serious eye. "Stardust" focuses its beams on the comedy angles, few of which it neglects.

Like Miss Darnell in real life, the heroine is rejected temporarily, only to click later. In the film, her rejection is the result of favoritism by a low casting director (Meek) and her triumph comes from the kindly offices of the talent coach (Greenwood) and the talent scout (Young).

Gargan plays a Zanuck-like producer with vim, and young Payne as a handsome conceited football player who is forever breaking his nose before tests, delivers easy-to-take comedy. Darnell playing her age, is more impressive . . . and luscious . . . than ever. Greenwood's return to films is welcome, especially when she sings, and Mary Healy delivers a couple of blues tunes punchily.

"FLORIAN" Robert Young, Helen Gilbert, Irina Baronova, Reginald Owen, Florian.

When those Lippizans (white horses of the old Austrian imperial stables) are on the screen, "Florian" is a marvelous picture — a thing of beauty and grace. Florian himself (he's the horse) is worth the tedium involved in following a trite yarn of courtly intrigue and romance — the devoted groom hopelessly in love with the pretty duchess who must marry the nobleman who has an affair with the ballerina.

After the war (No. 1), horse and girl and boy are separated. Boy crosses the ocean in search of his horse, finally saves him in the familiar nick from the glue factory. At this point, the girl shows up, rather startlingly, if you have forgotten there ever was a girl, which gives you an idea what Florian was up against in his first starring picture. For sorry dialogue, for phoney plot and for the most beautiful horse sequences ever filmed, "Florian" is a stand-out.

DRIVING RIGHTS OF 43 REVOKED BY MUNY COURT

Six Months Report Reveals Reckless Driving Caused Most Suspensions.

Forty-three automobile drivers have lost their driving rights for periods ranging from 30 days to one year for traffic violations, through Mansfield municipal court convictions, a report compiled by the state bureau of motor vehicles showed today.

The report revealed suspensions and revocation of licenses from Oct. 1, 1939 to March 31 and showed 111 convictions for violation of the traffic code.

Major portion of convictions for which licenses were suspended for various periods ranging from 30 days to six months was careless and reckless driving. A total of 79 drivers were charged with this offense.

Drunk driving was listed second in the number for which drivers licenses were revoked. Twenty-four automobile operators were penalized by the loss of their driving right for one year in addition to a fine invoked by the court.

Four drivers lost their operator's permits for failure to stop after an accident during the five-month period and four others were convicted on miscellaneous charges.

Municipal court records revealed that the major portion of the arrests on traffic violations were made within the Mansfield district by the state highway patrol.

THEATERS

Laughton and Leigh.

Charles Laughton, who's run the gamut of odd characters all the way from the merry monarch of "Henry, the Eighth" to the piece of human driftwood of "The Beachcomber," undertakes his most novel portrayal of all in his latest vehicle, "Sidewalks of London." He's co-starred with the notorious Vivien Leigh. Laughton plays the role of a "busker," which is a London street entertainer who sings, dances and clowns for pennies donated by strollers and theatergoers. Miss Leigh will be seen at the Madison as a feminine "busker" and his tempestuous sweetheart. "Geronimo," an Indian picture, is the co-feature.

Bing Crosby, who had the title role in "The Star Maker," is living up to it by helping many young players on their way to screen fame. One of the latest to benefit from appearing with Bing is Benny Inocencio, 11-year-old South Sea Island native, who is seen with him in "Road to Singapore," the film showing at the Ohio theater. Dorothy Lamour and Bob Hope are co-starred. This picture tells how Bing and Bob sing their way down to the land of Goona Goona to avoid the ladies only to fall in love with Dorothy.

"Disputed Passage"

Miss Lamour may also be seen at the Majestic theater beginning Tuesday in "Disputed Passage." This story, written by Lloyd Douglas, has as a leading character, a doctor who thinks love the greatest menace to a young scientist's career, played by Akim Tamiroff. John Howard, as the handsome young doctor, has as his favorite patient, Dorothy Lamour. The co-feature is "Another Thin Man," with William Powell, Myrna Loy and William Poulsen in the leading roles.

The Cat and the Canary.

Moviegoers who dare movie-makers to thrill them and at the same time amuse them will meet the cinematic answer to challenge in "The Cat and the Canary," co-starring Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard, which shows at the Ritz theater through Tuesday. The feature attraction is "Gulliver's Travels," a technicolor animated cartoon, taken from the immortal book by Jonathan Swift. This brilliant 18th century clergyman and author, wrote his tale as a biting satire upon human weaknesses in general and his country's political institutions in particular.

Two For Excitement.

How a lad with a penchant for over-statement causes a romantic tangle and sends a whole Latin-American community into a business boom is the gay subject of "Escape to Paradise," the latest picture starring Bobby Breen the singer. Kent Taylor, Marla Shelton and Joyce Compton are in the supporting cast. This picture and "His Girl Friday" are the shows at the Park theater. Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell are co-starred in this hilarious news yarn.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up" and step. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 15¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

PLANT NOW FOR FALL STRAWBERRIES

Plant now if you would like to eat strawberries from your own garden this fall. You must plant the Ever-Bearing variety, however, if you want to feast on the berries at a time when other people are thinking of their coal and wood piles.

For setting out purposes young plants which have a well developed root system of light-colored, fibrous roots, a plump crown, and but few leaves, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Do not make the mistake of planting strawberries in newly turned sod land, for if you do the plants are likely to be eaten by white grubs or wire worms. Strawberries do best in an acid soil which is well drained, also rich in organic matter.

SPRING'S RETURN SPURS ACTIVITY AT FLYING FIELD

Mansfield Pilots Expect Two New Planes Within Month; New Hangar Underway.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

The return of spring to Mansfield has signalled the way for renewed activity at the municipal airport. Planes are again out on the line and the "hangar flying" days are over.

There's been plenty of coming and going the past week. At least 10 visiting fliers dropped into the port, among them State Director of Aeronautics Earl L. Johnson, who flew in from Columbus Thursday to address a Kiwanis club luncheon meeting.

Johnson isn't one of those fellows who just holds down an office in the capital, he practices what he preaches, flying over the state in the aeronautics department's Waco cabin ship.

"Bud" Lucas, a test pilot for the Lockheed aircraft corporation at Burbank, Calif., also dropped in for a visit while stopping off with relatives in Mansfield. He had just delivered a new bomber to the U. S. army base at Miami, Fla.

Two new planes have been purchased by Mansfield pilots and will be delivered about May 8.

Of course, there's nothing unusual about that but there is about the ships—they have no carburetors. Instead they are equipped with fuel injectors, a mechanism developed by airplane manufacturers for reducing gasoline consumption and eliminates the carburetor heater for de-icing the unit.

The craft are new Luscombes—a light all-metal cabin plane. One purchased by Airport Manager "Bud" Harrington is to be equipped with all the instruments for "blind flying." It will be the first light plane in Mansfield to carry this equipment.

"Bud" says the ship will be used for training pilots in instrument flying.

The other Luscombe was purchased by the Mansfield Flying club, and will be used for sport.

With the new planes due work will be speeded up this week on the new $7,000 fireproof hangar that's under construction at the port.

Foundations are already in and the steel girders are on the job. It is hoped that workmen this week will hoist the framework into place begin placing the siding.

When completed the hangar will provide housing facilities for 13 airplanes.

Two new students were enrolled last week for flying instruction. They are William Hayes and Frederick DeLong.

H. E. Odell, sales promotion manager for the Harrington Air service and Paul Gimble, chief mechanic, were in Cleveland last week to attend an American Airlines traffic meeting at the Hotel Carter.

Flying activity will be stepped up next month when the Civil Aeronautics Authority flying course is started for the 10 students and five alternates who will be selected to take the instructions.

Final exams will be given the 50 students enrolled in the ground course on April 22 at the senior high school. Major E. H. Jose, Chicago, private flying specialist for the C. A. A. will fly here to conduct the exams.

Believe Roosevelt Has Decided Against Third Term

M'NUTT GIVEN PERMISSION TO OPEN CAMPAIGN

Public Approval of Garner Candidacy Given By House Leader.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A growing belief that President Roosevelt has decided against running for a third term spread through the capitol today after two significant Democratic developments over the week-end.

One development was a formal announcement by Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt that he is taking a three-weeks furlough "with the approval of the president" to tour the nation in the interests of his own candidacy for the Democratic nomination. McNutt predicts his campaign "on the condition that President Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a third term."

The other was a public declaration by Rep. Sam Rayburn, the president's leader in the House, urging Texans to support Vice President John Nance Garner for the Democratic nomination.

Declaring his personal loyalty to the president and the New Deal, Rayburn called Garner the 'most distinguished citizen of Texas since Sam Houston"—but said nothing at all about a third term. Both are strong supporters of the president; both have contacted him recently; both assert the president can be renominated if he wishes. Under these circumstances, observers feel McNutt would not campaign actively for the nomination, and that Rayburn would not endorse Garner—unless each has some information indicating the president proposes to retire to private life when his present term ends.

Changes Stand.

The McNutt development has additional significance, in that the president personally gave the Indianan permission to campaign for the Democratic nomination. Last July, the president announced that no appointive officer of the government — meaning McNutt — would be permitted to campaign for the presidency. Now, the president gives McNutt a leave of absence, so that the Indianan may conduct his campaign.

The security administrator will visit every state, he announces, "except those which are supporting a favorite son candidate."

Expect Blessing.

Friends of McNutt hint that he may yet receive the president's blessing for the Democratic nomination. They point out the president twice before has honored McNutt with surprise appointments to high office—first as high commissioner to the Philippines and then as security administrator. Now, they add, the president has given him permission to test Democratic reaction on his candidacy.

The Rayburn development was less significant, because of his long friendship for Garner. Rayburn, however, has been silent about Garner's candidacy until a group of Texans began a third term campaign in their home state. The Rayburn declaration was to Mayor Tom Miller, of Austin, a third term leader.

After asserting his own loyalty to Roosevelt, Rayburn praised Garner's great record of public achievement and closed with:

"I think all these things considered, that his fellow citizens of Texas should honor him (Garner) by sending a delegation to the national convention instructed to vote for him for the Democratic nomination for president."

State Publicity Board To Draft Opening Program

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — The commission created by the general assembly to tell the world about Ohio's recreational and industrial advantages meets here today to select a secretary and draft a preliminary program.

The six members of the commission, known as the Ohio Development and Publicity Commission, were appointed a week ago by Governor John W. Bricker although the commission was created by the legislature last summer.

The legislature appropriated $20,000 to get the commission through its first two years and stipulated that it could not pay its secretary more than $3600 a year.

Members of the commission are: Col William M. Mumm, Columbus; Dwight D. Hatcher, Toledo; Reno G. Hoag, Marietta; Justin A. Rollman, Cincinnati; Peter K. Tadsen Port Clinton, and Horton H. Hampton, Cleveland.

An angry tenant at Trailer City on the Ashland hill called the sheriff's office this morning and wanted something done about the vandals who plastered his trailer with overripe eggs last night. The motorist said the act was particularly irritating because he had just cleaned and polished the trailer for the summer. Sheriff E. P. Long decided it was a "smelly" case, and the motorist was told the best thing he could do was clean the trailer again and report any further trouble.

RESTAURANT HIT BY BLAZE TODAY

BELLVILLE — Fire which was believed to have started from a short circuit in an electric refrigerator caused damage estimated at $250 in the kitchen of Mayle Margot's restaurant early today.

Discovered about 2:30 a. m. by Henry Landreville, service station proprietor who lives over the restaurant, the blaze was extinguished by the Bellville fire department.

Margot, who purchased the restaurant about two months ago, said damage to the building would amount to only $70, but he estimated the equipment and stock loss at about $180.

NAVAL EXPANSION BILL GETS SENATE CONSIDERATION TODAY

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The senate turned itself into a court of admirals today to begin consideration of the biggest navy bills in history.

A $655,000,000 fleet expansion bill, predicated on the navy's contention that Uncle Sam must be prepared to meet the strongest naval combination of enemies that could be mustered, and the $9663,797,478 navy supply bill, were the measures commanding attention.

Europe's warfare sharpened the debate, centered on the old issue of warships versus airplanes. News dispatches of sinking cruisers and destroyers, with battleships still riding the waves, lent weight to arguments that this government must build bigger floating forts.

Public hearings on the expansion bill, anticipating construction of 21 combat ships and 22 auxiliaries were scheduled to start before the senate naval affairs committee today. This bill has passed the house, as has the $963,797,478 supply bill, on which senate action was scheduled for later this week.

Despite opposition, administration supporters appeared powerful enough to pass both bills. Republicans, and the Democratic economy advocates admitted there was little chance of whittling down either measure.

AWAIT VERDICT

Steubenville Mayoralty Rivals Expect Decision Soon.

STEUBENVILLE—(INS)— Judge Clarence Ahl, of Crawford county, who heard a month's testimony in the Steubenville mayoralty election contest, arrived in Steubenville today and immediately began dictating his opinion which will be read in Common Pleas court this week.

Judge Ahl will decide whether the election last Nov. 7, of James T. Welsh, Democrat, as mayor, was legal, or whether the petition of Charles E. Baker, Welsh's Republican opponent who asked the court to set aside the Democrat's election as illegal and declare Baker the duly elected mayor, would be sustained.

Hundreds of ballots cast for both Baker and Welsh were assailed as illegal during the 33-day hearing. The conduct of election officials also was an issue.

SEAMEN DEMAND WAGE INCREASE SHORTER HOURS

Union Faces Federal Action For Violation of Labor Disputes Law.

(By United Press)

TORONTO—Striking Canadian seamen faced federal action today after halting all Canadian Great Lakes shipping a few hours before the 1940 navigation season officially opened.

Nearly 6,500 members of the Canadian Seamen's union struck in 15 lake ports at midnight for pay raises, shorter work day, bigger crews, union representation aboard ship and the closed shop. The government said the strike was in violation of a federal law and the union replied with a threat to extend it to 2,500 workers on the docks and grain elevators.

Union officials said they had tied up about 275 lake boats and that no cargoes would be loaded for Great Lakes shipment at any Canadian port from Fort William, Ont., to the Gaspe peninsula.

The union demanded a $15 a month wage increase, delegates aboard ships to act as intermediaries between crews and officers and three more men on each vessel.

The 11 companies affected said that the wage increase demand would total more than the 1939 earnings of the largest company.

Deputy Minister of Labor William Dickson told J. A. Sullivan, president of the union, that the strike was a violation of the industrial disputes investigations act because the dispute had not been submitted to arbitration. Sullivan charged that the department of labor favors ship owners.

Bar Closed Shop.

A joint statement issued by four ship owners said the closed shop is not permitted on ships in any part of the world because of the necessity of maintaining discipline.

The statement said union delegates aboard ships would be unacceptable. Union officials replied that previous agreements had provided for delegates and preferential hiring and that the delegates had strict instructions not to interfere with discipline.

The CSU has jurisdiction over deep sea seamen but they were not involved. However, union leaders said it was conceivable that they might be involved later "if the situation gets out of hand."

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Nothing Like a Letter From Hope.

Bob Hope, who makes people laugh in the cinema and on the radio, as well as other places too numerous to mention, said he would try to run up a Broadway column, but it would have to start as a letter, because that is the only way he could write to a girl and feel really cosy.

"DEAR DOROTHY: it's really a pleasure to write this column for you . . . after all, you are the only columnist who isn't touring the country with a troupe of movie stars, aren't you?

Of course, you came to the right person when you asked me to write a column about Hollywood. . . . I should be an authority, I have spent all of two years in the cinema. All I know about this burg is what I read in the New York papers, but don't get me wrong, I love Hollywood. . . . Wise man say (no, not Confucius) "Everyman love place where he get good pay and good sunburn." . . . It's great to be a successful actor in Hollywood. . . .

A successful actor is a fellow with a swimming pool and a worried look, but really, I should have no cause to complain, because they're treating me very nice these days at Paramount. They give me carfare now.

Flash!!! the Trocadero opened today.

Flash!!! the Trocadero closed today.

Warner Bros., having produced Dodge City and Virginia City, now face a helluva problem. They want to make a picture titled New York City but production is being held up until the boys decide where to world-premiere it.

FLASH!!! The Trocadero opened and closed today. The proprietors of this famous cafe are installing a revolving padlock.

Mayor LaGuardia must be slipping. . . . Can you imagine anybody wanting (really wanting) Hollywood to move to New York.

Where would writers and actors (who just want to see clean hard rain) go? . . . And wouldn't Broadway look funny with orange trees instead of orange stands in bloom. . . . Tell Hizzoner to lay off Hollywood. . . . Let him stick to women's hats . . . Ah, there's a controversy for you, but let me stick my nose out of it.

Paramount gave me a new dressing room as a result of the success of the "Road to Singapore" . . . Lady, you've never seen anything like it . . . It's a cigar box with a window . . . It's so small every time I look in the mirror my reflection starts to push me. . . . My dressing room overlooks a butcher shop next to the studio. . . . Every time I look over there the hams in the window start muttering about the injustice of it all.

Carole Lombard has a dressing room next to me. The other day I heard a knocking on the wall so I dashed right over. How did I know that Clark Gable smokes a pipe?

There's one feature about my dressing room that I do like. If they don't pick up my option, all I have to do is pull a string, a trap-door opens and I drop into an upper berth on the Chief.

Oh, by the way, have you seen "Gone With the Wind"? There's a nice couple of pictures. I got into see it a little late so I missed the first two days.

Did you hear about the horse Bing Crosby gave me for a gift? Boy, it's a swell horse. Before the race I went down to the paddock to look him over. I handed him a lump of sugar and he turns to me and says, "Don't bother, old boy, Doctor Townsend is taking care of me.

I don't know if you have been to many Hollywood parties during your last trip out here, but throwing a party in Hollywood is an experience that no one should miss. You invite a group of people and they tell you by telephone ten minutes before you go in to eat that they can't come, but it doesn't matter, because another group of people show up. "We're friends of the other folks you asked," they say. "We'll stick around for a while and see if we like it."

They have some novel parties in Hollywood once in a while. Why, recently I went to a party that WAS'NT thrown by the Basil Rathbones. It was really a novel party. Everybody was supposed to come as the person they admired most. Nine actors showed up as themselves.

Speaking, Dorothy, as a comedian, Hollywood gives a comic so many subjects to tell old jokes about. There's the movies, the weather, Crosby's clothes, Crosby's horses, Crosby's golf, Crosby's racetrack, Crosby's hair and Crosby.

Things I'd like to see in pictures: John Garfield happy to be alive . . . Don Ameche playing the role of a fellow who never wrote nuthin', never invented nuthin' and, in fact, was nuthin' but a nuthin' . . . Basil Rathbone, living through the whole picture. Mae West as Shirley Temple's mother, but not vice versa . . .

Have you ever been to a preview in Hollywood when after the picture is over all the stars leave the theater and the doorman calls for Ronald Coleman's car, Myrna Loy's car, Gary Cooper's car and Bob Hope's bodyguard? Well I thought I'd let you know because if there aren't any laughs in this column I still retain my bodyguard.

Love and kisses

Bob Hope

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Stardust," Screenplay by Robert Ellis and Helen Logan, from story by Jesse Malo, Kenneth Earl and Ivan Kahn. Directed by Walter Lang. Principals: Linda Darnell, John Payne, Roland Young, Charlotte Greenwood, William Gargan, Mary Beth Hughes, Mary Healy, Donald Meek, Harry Green, Jesse Ralph.

"Stardust" is a bright and ingratiating piece about the youthful quest for fame in Hollywood, in particular about a couple of youngsters played by Darnell and Payne. With Mary Healy, the romantic leads are "discoveries" of a studio talent scout who brings them to Hollywood for screen tests.

As a picture of the processes surrounding such tests, talent scouting in general and the idiosyncracies of movieland, "Stardust" would hold interest for all the screen-struck. Adorned as it is with humor, with good performances and amusing situations and lines, the picture should provide a pleasant time also for those whose interest in filmland is more impersonal.

"A Star Is Born" but of a few seasons ago, explored the industry with a more serious eye. "Stardust" focuses its beams on the comedy angles, few of which it neglects.

Like Miss Darnell in real life, the heroine is rejected temporarily, only to click later. In the film, her rejection is the result of favoritism by a lax casting director (Meek), and her triumph comes from the kindly offices of the talent coach (Greenwood) and the talent scout (Young).

Gargan plays a Zanuck-like producer with vim, and young Payne as a handsome, conceited football player who is forever breaking his nose before tests, delivers easy-to-take comedy. Darnell playing her age, is more impressive and luscious . . than ever. Greenwood's return to films is welcome, especially when she sings, and Mary Healy delivers a couple of blues tunes punchily.

"FLORIAN," Robert Young, Helen Gilbert, Irina Barenova, Reginald Owen, Florian.

When those Lippizans (white horses of the old Austrian imperial stables) are on the screen, "Florian" is a marvelous picture, a thing of beauty and grace. Florian himself (he's the horse) hero) is worth the tedium involved in following a trite yarn of courtly intrigue and romance the devoted groom hopelessly in love with the pretty duchess who must marry the nobleman who has an affair with the ballerina.

After the war (No 1), horse and girl and boy are separated. Boy crosses the ocean in search of his horse, finally saves him in the familiar nick from the glue factory. At this point, the girl shows up, rather startlingly, if you have forgotten there ever was a girl, which gives you an idea what Florian was up against in his first starring picture. For sorry dialogue, for phoney plot and for the most beautiful horse sequences ever filmed, "Florian" is a stand-out.

Managers Claim Teams Are Better Than Last Year

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK — (AP) — Maybe you don't think so and maybe the standings won't show it after the season starts tomorrow, but every club in baseball's two major leagues is stronger this year.

No less authority than the word of the 16 managers can be accepted for that statement and you will have to admit that they ought to know. The only fault with the managers' survey is that if each club has improved as much as they say, no team can catch the club ahead.

None of the managers is publicly picking his own club to win the pennant; Dr. J. Thompson Prothro of the Philadelphia Phillies even goes so far as to say, "I don't think we will finish in the first division."

There was a time when nearly every manager predicted a pennant for his charges, but as Casey Stengel of the Boston Bees declares, "I'm not picking my race this year. I did it last year and wound up seventh."

Just listen.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Jimmy Dykes, Chicago White Sox—"We'll have more power this year—if we hit consistently we'll make trouble and be hard to beat all the way."

Joe Cronin, Boston Red Sox—"If our pitching, which has looked good, stays that way, we're going to be a much improved ball club."

Joe McCarthy, New York Yankees—"The Yanks look as good as last year. No major league club ever won five straight championships, yet most everyone has picked us to perform that feat. My team is ready to meet any challenge."

Connie Mack, Philadelphia Athletics—"I'm quite satisfied the Athletics will be much stronger this season than last, although I can't predict where we'll finish."

Fred Haney, St. Louis Browns—"We have an improved ball club and hope to finish higher than last year."

Del Baker, Detroit Tigers—"I expect the Tigers to return to the first division this year."

Bucky Harris, Washington Senators—"We have one of the fastest teams I have ever seen. If our pitching holds up we'll be a good team."

Oscar Vitt, Cleveland Indians—"At no time have I had the entire squad in shape to play at the same time. How can I make predictions about a team that, in a sense, I haven't seen? We're not ready in the way I'd like the club to be ready this close to the opening game."

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Gabby Hartnett, Chicago Cubs—"I'm convinced we have a better ball club than a year ago—how much better remains to be seen."

Bill McKechnie, Cincinnati Reds—"We are ready to start the season with a ball club stronger than the one we won the pennant with last year."

Ray Blades, St. Louis Cardinals—"We think we have a pretty good club, but as to just where we will finish I am unable to say. However, I think our club will give a good account of itself."

Leo Durocher, Brooklyn Dodgers—"I'm not making a pre-season prediction on my team or any other team in the National league. But I will say this: We'll be the same hustling club this year."

Bill Terry, New York Giants—"The Giants are going to be right in the fight."

Casey Stengel, Boston Bees—"We have a young and ambitious ball club, but it's too early to tell how strong we'll be in every department."

Frank Frisch, Pittsburgh Pirates—"I hope we can show the fans a first division ball club this season, but regardless of the position we must get hustle."

Doc Prothro, Phillies—"This is a better club than I managed last season and we should fare better."

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—This is blue Monday.

I might even say this is the black and blue Monday.

This will scarcely have reached print and you will scarcely have had time to read it before the maddest army since General Coxey said "forward march!" moves toward an innocent and completely neutral ground called Jamaica.

Jamaica is a race track. Jamaica is a small race track, comprising little more than a few white-washed buildings, all of which wouldn't quite fill the turf club at Santa Anita or the Paddock at Arlington park.

The pari-mutuel betting system has come to New York State and it comes to Jamaica first. Wise heads in the New York racing commission made a sensible but vain effort to have the opening of the New York season moved to Belmont park, a really spacious racing plant where thousands can be accommodated.

There is likely to be a crush on Jamaica today that will make headlines. You know the sort of thing I mean—mothers separated from infants, limbs broken, brothers and sisters reunited after 25 years of separation, and Siamese twins having to ask policemen for guidance to those who came with them.

I say this on a hunch that New York state doesn't realize fully what pari-mutuel betting means to the general public.

Jamaica is just six furlongs from the world's largest city, the greatest potential sucker market in the world. Los Angeles, Detroit, Boston, Miami, Chicago and yes, even San Francisco, were amazed when they tapped this golden flow via pari-mutuels.

Maybe I'm going to be wrong, but I believe that when the floodgates are let down for the two-dollar chumps — that's you and me and the other seven million in New York—that this particular flow will be a millstream of millions. Just how many millions, none of us know now. There have been many estimates. Those who wanted the bookies to stay made it very conservative, around $50,000,000. Uninterested parties said $100,000,000 and the overly-optimistic politicians $300,000,000. I say an even, round $200,000,000

Only one thing am I sure of. For the first few months, at least, New York will be the most uncomfortable state in the union in which to lose your money. The facilities for losing your money just aren't there. Jamaica can accommodate, say 15,000 people comfortably. Around 25,000 will be on hand the first day.

This makes one thing certain. We can now forget, once and for all, horse-racing as anything but a money-making proposition. Be it for the state, the breeder, the owner, the track, the trainer, certainly it won't be for the bettor.

So let us welcome the bangs and bruises we'll all get at Jamaica today if just for these reasons:

Racing to exist must pay off the politicians.

Racing to exist must pay off the track promozrs

Racing to exist must pay off the horse owners.

The only thing that racing does not have to pay off to exist are the horse players, the body politic which shoves the $2, $5 and $10 notes through the windows.

I'm so indignant about the whole matter, so aroused by the injustice of the entire thing, that I am not getting to Jamaica today until 15 minutes before the first race.

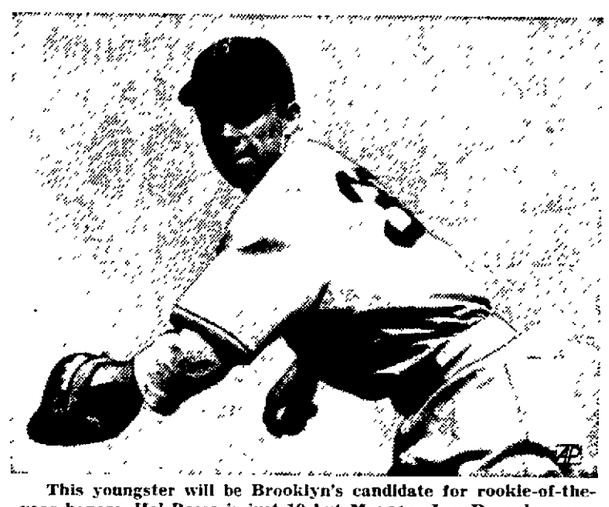
DOCTOR SAYS POWELL OUT OF DANGER TODAY

ASHLAND, Ky. (INS)—Jake Powell, the New York Yankees outfielder who suffered a severe brain concussion here last week in an exhibition game with the Brooklyn Dodgers was well out of danger today, according to Dr. C. B. Daniels.

Powell will have to be here for 10 days and can have no visitors the doctor said.

Big League Clubs Pin Hopes on These Men as 1940 Season Opens

Bucky Walters is one tosser all National league hitters hate to buck up against. He led the loop in 1939 with 27 wins. Cincinnati may need another big year from Walters to take the flag. The Reds are hosts to Chicago Tuesday.



This youngster will be Brooklyn's candidate for rookie-of-the-year honors. Hal Reese is just 19 but Manager Leo Durocher says he is the greatest young shortstop he's ever seen. The Dodgers are at Boston Tuesday.

This young man may make a pennant contender out of the Cleveland Indians. He's Lou Boudreau. Old Os Vitt says Lou is the niftiest shortstop he has seen in years. You'll forget Crosetti, he says. The Indians open at Chicago tomorrow.

Where does this tall, thin thumper get all of his power? It comes through the perfect timing of a long smooth swing. Ted Williams is the Boston Red Sox candidate to better Ruth's homer mark. Boston plays at Washington tomorrow.

Ashland Scrapper to Face Columbus Champ

Howman Re-Matched Against Franklin In One of Semi-finals on "Battle of Champions" Card.

By CHARLES MARTIN

WHILE Beauford Glover, top Mansfield lightweight, will not fight on Battery D's "Battle of Champions" amateur mitt show at the Armory Wednesday night, Mansfield fans will see a thrill-packed program.

Ray Howman of Ashland, whom Glover claims is the toughest ringster he ever faced, has been re-matched and will face Frank Franklin, Columbus American Legion titleholder, in a five-round semi-final tussle.

Howman recently won the JAC lightweight title and is second only to Glover among north central Ohio's 135-pounders. Glover suffered a cut over his left eye in a semi-final bout in the Boston AAU tourney and doctors turned thumbs down on his participation in Wednesday's show.

Matchmakers John Villella and Mike Wentz have secured Ed Laubert, of Fremont, a hard-punching lightweight to replace Howman in a three-round match against Dan Matthews of Columbus.

Wednesday's feature setto will be the scrap between Mansfield's Jake Zacharias and Manual Armstrong, 160, of Columbus. Armstrong recently won the Capital city's American Legion tournament title. It will be a 5-rounder.

Sauer

In the other five-round melee, Paul Carbotta, 116, faces Eddie Potter, Columbus city champion.

What stacks up as the best three-round battle is the scheduled affair between Al Sauer, who recently won the JAC light-heavyweight crown and Charles Hodges, another Capital city youth. Sauer marked himself as a comer by his sensational rally in the finals of the JAC meet.

Sauer spotted Phil Hess of Fremont 11 pounds in that battle and came up from the canvas in the second round to defeat his opponent. Hess was down twice in the final heat. Sauer also won the trophy as the tourney's outstanding fighter.

In the other three-round matches, Joe Sauer, 147, Mansfield, tackles John Cotter, 146, Fremont; Sammy Walker, 148, Mansfield, battles Norman Weiser, 148, Fremont; and Eddie Talley, 160, Mansfield, takes on Willard Williams, Fremont. Both Talley and Walker won titles in the JAC tourney.

Indians Start Out on Loop War Path Tonight

Still Untried As Unit, Club Entrains For Chicago to Face White Sox In Opener.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians start out on the American league war path tonight—still untried in their entire combat formation.

Snow prevented playing the final games of their exhibition series with the New York Giants scheduled here over the week-end. The National leaguers went home on the long end of their spring series, seven games to five.

Tonight the Tribe entrains for Chicago to meet the White Sox in the season opener tomorrow. They were heartened by reports a warm wave is on the way.

The entire Cleveland baseball machine, expected by so many to be runner-up to the Yankees, is as yet untried because it has not been able to assemble all at once. Injuries have shot holes in the varsity line-up all spring.

Ken Keltner says his sinus trouble won't interfere with his third base duties. Al Milnar thinks his salary arm is recovering.

DAYTON—(AP)—Buckeye bowlers hold top positions in the National Moose Bowling tournament here.

H. Malquist of Ashtabula rolled a sparkling 759 last night to lead E. G. Phillips of Waukegan, Ill., with 722, in singles events.

Counting 3,147, the Moosehaven keglers of Barberton dropped Ade's Cafe team of Dayton, able to score 3,141, into second place in five-man team competition.

Thomas and Jacka of Bryan continued to pace doubles bouts ahead of Bensman and Estridge of Dayton with 1,337. Myers and Francis of East Chicago, Ind., piled up 1,320 for a grip on fifth position and the only change in two-man standings.

Storck To Rule League This Year

NEW YORK — (AP) — Carl L. Storck of Dayton, O., who knows as much about professional football as anyone in the world, will rule the National Football league for another year.

Storck, who has been acting president of the circuit since the death of Joe Carr last May, was elected unanimously to the presidency for one year at the final session of the league's 21st annual meeting Sunday.

Contrary to reports that he would not accept the office for such a short period, Storck insisted that the term be no longer because of his increasing business duties.

FOOTBALL PLAYER DIES

XENIA—(AP)—James H. Robinson, 22, of Dayton, and an outstanding football player at Wilberforce university, is dead—the victim of an automobile collision yesterday. A tire blow-out or mechanical trouble apparently caused Robinson's car to swerve into another automobile, Coroner H. C. Schick reported.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (AP) — Tattle Tales: Joe Gould and Mike Jacobs are huddling daily . . . and it wouldn't bowl B'way over if Gould drops his damage suit against Mike and moves in as matchmaker for the 20th Century Sporting club. . . . Bud Ward, so his pals say, may resign as an amateur and become a business man golfer—but not until after he defends his U. S. amateur title in September.

ONE ON THE HOUSE

Did you know Judge Landis once ran a string of saloons? . . . While on the federal bench he had 27 thrust upon him in a receivership action . . . In the papers of April 6, 1915, the judge announced the bars would operate in strict accordance with the law, closing all day Sunday and at 1 o'clock every morning.

The Derby future books are getting plenty of coast money on Mioland . . . The Yanks don't fear the Red Sox and Indians nearly as much as they do the mutuels . . . The Jamaica set-up has 316 windows . . . Jimmy Demaret and Byron Nelson will team up for an exhibition tour after the National open . . . When the Cards had an off day in Oklahoma recently, Pepper Martin loaded some of the stars into a truck and put 'em to work on his farm.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Dick Hackenberg, Minneapolis Star-Journal: "Frosty Peters, the new American association umpire, is a former U. of Illinois football star . . . A Daytona Beach fan yelled at him, 'Hey, Peters, you used to boot 'em for Illinois and you're still booting 'em!'"

Three of the four infielders on the Illinois baseball team were supplied by Morton High, Chicago . . . Al Patnik, Ohio State diving star who was all set to turn pro and join Billy Rose's Aquacade, changed his mind when Rose slashed the offer from $250 to $150 per week.

Dutch Clark, one of the greatest backs to ever tote the mail, has been reinstated as a player in the pro league . . . But Dutch isn't fooling himself . . . "I have hung up my shoes for good," he says. . . . "Now I have trouble walking 18 holes of golf."

Candidates Go Through Paces

Kentucky Derby Entrants May Get Final Tests.

LOUISVILLE—(INS) — Favored by return of warmer weather, Kentucky derby candidates today went through delayed workouts at Churchill Downs, and at the Keeneland track in Lexington, for the $75,000 added classic here May 4.

Cold which has caused the lay off let up yesterday enough to permit Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Gallahadion to go a mile in 1:48 3-5. Prompt Pay, another derby contender owned by the Wolford farm, went five furlongs in 1:07.2.

At nearby Idle Hour farm, Col. E. R. Bradley's Bimelech, top winter book favorite for the derby, went through his paces for his first track appearance as a 3-year-old. He may go to the post Thursday in the Stony Point race at a mile and a sixteenth at Keeneland.

If Bimelech does not run Thursday, he is expected to be entered in the Bluegrass stakes April 23. Racing circles consider his appearance in one or both of the races essential as a pre-Derby tryout. All reports indicate he is "running satisfactorily."

Derringer to Face Chicago

Cincinnati Righthander Nominated For Duty In Tomorrow's Opening Contest.

CINCINNATI—(UP)—"For Cincinnati, Derringer pitching and Lombardi catching."

"For Chicago, Lee pitching and Hartnett catching."

That's the cry that will ring out shortly before 3 p. m. EST at Crosley field tomorrow when the Cincinnati Reds begin defense, weather permitting, of their National league pennant against the initial charge of the Chicago Cubs.

A capacity crowd of 30,000 rock-ribbed Redleg supporters will be on hand to help the Reds win their first opening day contest since 1932.

Paul Derringer, Mr. Control himself who won 25 games last season, will assume Cincinnati mound duty and his rival will be Bill Lee, Cub ace of two seasons ago who will try to regain his top form this year.

There will be only one new name—Mike McCormick, left field—in the Cincinnati starting lineup that captured the flag last September and Manager Bill McKechnie hopes the Irishman from Indianapolis will add power to the Red offense. McCormick batted .318 in the Association and has hit well in spring games for the Reds.

He laced out a double and a single yesterday as the Reds dropped their final exhibition tilt, 8 to 3, in 10 innings to Detroit. A shivering crowd of 2,800 saw the preview at Crosley field.

Probably even more portentous for Cincinnati baseball success was continued pitching improvement by Johnny Vander Meer, hard-working "golden boy" of 1938 who is attempting a comeback.

Vandy held the hard-hitting Tigers to one hit and no runs in two innings and issued two walks. The safety was a blow that Lonnie Frey couldn't hold.

McKechnie said he probably would give Johnny a starting chance against Pittsburgh the coming week-end.

EXHIBIT SOME STRENGTH IN TODAY'S MART

Specialties Again in Front, But Most Leaders Hold to Slim Groove.

NEW YORK- Specialties again exhibited quiet strength in today's stock market but most leaders held to a slim groove.

Tilting forward were Douglas Aircraft, Lockheed, Aviation Corp., N. Y. Shipbuilding, International Mercantile Marine, Electric Boat, Martin-Parry and International Paper common and preferred.

War news continued as a confusing speculative factor, brokers said, but the domestic business scene served as a prop for sentiment.

Bonds were a shade uneven and commodities higher. Foreign markets were irregular.

Boardrooms scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said recent price cuts in flat-rolled products tended to overshadow the appearance of more definite improvement in demand for the metal.

The Machine Tool Builders' association estimated that operations in this industry rose to a new peak of 93.4 per cent of capacity in March.

British Troops Land In Norway for Battle

Germany announced two more allied submarines had been sunk in the Skagerrak and a Norwegian torpedo boat captured.

The stalemate on the western front was unbroken as French and German forces settled back into their old positions after thrusts into each other's lines during the past 24 hours.

Confirmation, in part, for the British victory reports came from Berlin when the German high command acknowledged that the British had established a blockade of Narvik, Norway's far northern ore port and the likeliest toehold for the landing of an expeditionary force.

The Germans, however, did not go all the way on the British reports which included these:

That a belt of mines had been laid from a point off Keil, western Germany, through the Baltic to Lithuania, cutting across Germany's innermost maritime lifeline. How this was done without a head-on clash with the German high seas fleet was not clear.

That the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Scheer had been "successfully" torpedoed.

That Narvik, the object of two bitter naval engagements already, had been taken by the British and the Germans routed over the hills. This report, from a variety of sources, lacked official British confirmation.

That Stavanger, German-occupied port on the western Norwegian coast, was bombed last night. The London air ministry said all the attacking planes returned home despite fierce anti-aircraft fire.

On the Nazi side of the war ledger was the announcement that German troops had "further strengthened and consolidated" their positions in southern Norway and that seven allied submarines had been sunk in the past few days.

Both sides of the European war traded claims on the shooting down of planes—almost a commonplace since Germany swept into Denmark and Norway last Tuesday.

From somewhere in Norway—the locale hidden for fear of German air raids—King Haakon VII urged his people to fight on for "freedom and independence" while Norwegian soldiery still under arms for him appeared to be fighting a losing battle.

German lines, fanning outward from captured Oslo, shoved 3,000 men across the frontier into Sweden. Germany appeared to have occupied most of the territory within a 50 or 60-mile radius to the south, west and north of Oslo.

Caught in the backwash of war, Rome gave fresh indications that Italy—and other nations—soon might be in the swiftest of the current.

Giovanni Ansaldo, who often speaks for Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, declared in a broadcast to the troops yesterday that: "No people in Europe can isolate itself from the conflict."

Nazis Push Nearer To Swedish Border.

STOCKHOLM—(AP) Sporadic fighting between German and Norwegian forces in southeastern Norway brought the invading Nazis nearer the Swedish border today while in the north the British were reported definitely masters of Narvik and preparing to land troops at that Arctic ore port.

Swedish authorities announced that 3,000 Norwegians, seemingly hard-pressed, had fled across the frontier near Halden at the southern-most tip of Norway and had been disarmed and interned. The Germans were said to have driven several miles beyond Halden to Kornsjo, a border station on the railway between Oslo and Goteborg, only to retire later.

There were reports however that despite determined German efforts to clear out all resistance between Oslo and the Swedish border 30 miles away, Norwegian troops still were clinging to positions between Mysen and Kongsvinger. Mysen is about 15 miles southeast of Oslo and Kongsvinger about 35 miles northeast of the capital, not far from the Swedish border.

A recapitulation of reports indicated that the Germans had occupied most of the territory within a 50 or 60-mile radius to the south, west and north of Oslo.

Frederikstad, Sarpsborg, Holmestrand, Kongsberg, Drammen and Hokksund, all south or west of the capital, were reported in Nazi hands. North of the city the Germans were said to be holding all the area to Lake Mjosen, including the towns of Jevnaker, Lillestrom, Romerike, Honefoss and Eidsvold.

German troops also were deported to have occupied Elverum, which is about 35 miles from Oslo and north and slightly to the east of Lake Mjosen. This village, where the government stopped temporarily after abandoning Oslo, was said to be in ruins, with scarcely a wall standing.

Germans Admit Allies Blockading Narvik.

BULLETIN

COPENHAGEN—(INS)—(via Berlin)—The German legation at Copenhagen today denied the battleship Armiral Scheer has been torpedoed and said the warship is undamaged.

BERLIN—(AP)—Germany today announced two more allied submarines had been sunk in the Skagerrak, a Norweigian torpedo boat captured and a German merchant ship sunk by British air raiders at Bergen.

Establishment of a strong British naval blockade of Narvik, important northern Norwegian ore port, also was acknowledged by the Germans who said their southern forces had "crushed" Norway's attempt to mobilize in the Oslo region.

The high command, in a communique, declared the two new submarines raised to seven the losses of Allied undersea craft in recent days. Two British air raiders which sank a German merchant ship at Bergen subsequently were shot down, the communique declared.

Shedding only slight light on Germany's land operations in Norway, the communique reported capture of Honfoss in the Oslo area and said Norwegian efforts to mobilize had been "crushed" in that region.

The captured Norwegian torpedoboat Hval will be put into service with a German crew, the announcement stated.

The course of the northern struggle between British and German air and sea forces is obscure from this point.

Indications of cautious official disclosures are that the fight is still on, with each side taking heavy blows but unable or hesitant to try for the knockout punch.

Germans insist that there has been no headon clash of the grand fleets but rather that the the week of war linked with Scandinavia has been chiefly a series of comparatively minor engagements between segments of the naval forces.

Yesterday's communique spoke of several British destroyers damaged and "in some instances destroyed" and said the British destroyer Cossack was hit, fired and forced aground.

It also said that a British cruiser of the Glasgow class had been torpedoed north of the Shetland islands and three Allied submarines destroyed by pursuit planes in the Skagerrak.

The communique presented but a sketchy picture of land operations. German defensive works were said to have been strengthened and extended in Norway at Trondheim, Bergen, Stavanger and Kristiansand, while German troops in the Oslo region fanned out to the north, east and west, occupying Sarpsborg, Askim and other unidentified towns.

One hundred Norwegian army officers and 1,500 men laid down their arms before the German advance at Heidstadtmon, the communique said. The high command also announced British air raids of Saturday on Narvik, Stavanger and Bergen but said they "failed to inflict damage on military objectives."

Of the western front, the high command said, two detachments of storm troops penetrated "some kilometers" past the French border southwest of Merzig, entered an enemy position, defeated the forces manning it, destroyed four shelters and took prisoners."

Balkans Decide On Own Danubian Patrol.

(By Associated Press)

BUDAPEST—(INS)—Determined to resist demands by either Great Britain or Germany, Rumania and Yugoslavia have agreed upon measures for joint control and policing of the Danube, it was learned in Budapest today.

Fears of British sabotage to forestall supplies to Germany and recurrent rumors of forthcoming German demands for Danubian sovereignty led to the step.

Henceforth, the river police of both countries will co-operate actively.

"The Balkan countries will endeavor to show Germany that they are able to guard the Danube themselves," a well-informed Hungarian observer said.

Low Countries Keep Alert Frontier Watch.

THE HAGUE—(AP)—The low countries, determined not to be taken unawares by any threatening moves of Europe's warring powers, maintained an alert watch on their frontiers today but official circles were outwardly calm and there were few signs of public anxiety over the future.

Special defense measures were taken in both the Netherlands and Belgium, but these were closely guarded as military secrets. Theaters and cafes in all the larger cities did a normal peacetime business.

Government circles expressed indignation over foreign reports that there was imminent possibility of action by either the Germans or the Allies which might spread the war to the lowlands.

In Belgium, however, an organization of World war veterans suggested creation of a large auxiliary police force recruited from their ranks and designation of concentration camp sites where undesirable foreigners might be detained.

alley, said that the victim's head had been severed at the shoulders and his hands cut off at the wrists. They described the dissection as poorly done by someone unfamiliar with anatomy.

The torso was wrapped in a Red River Valley, N. D., potato sack and legs, which had been cut at the knees, and thighs, were in a South American coffee bag.

Police believed the victim had been murdered and the body brought to the West Madison street alley. They said they believed the missing members might indicate that the slayers had attempted to frustrate efforts to identify the victim from fingerprints.

A coroner's physician who made a preliminary examination of the torso and legs said that the man apparently had been dead four to eight hours. He estimated the age of the man at 40 to 50 years and said there were no identifying marks on the body.

He said the man's body appeared to be that of a man of position and not a resident of the Madison street area which is frequented by vagrants.

Shelby Seeks WPA Aid for $41,000 Subway.

SHELBY—Shelby's $41,000 subway project for the West Smiley avenue crossing of the New York Central railroad today had been filed for approval as a WPA project with WPA officials at Columbus, Mayor W. R. Morris announced.

If approved by WPA, the project will receive federal grants for labor, while the city pays for the material and other construction costs. Skilled and semi-skilled WPA labor would be used because of the kind of construction work, city officials pointed out.

Plans for the subway were approved by railroad officials at the estimated cost of $41000 which does not include street approaches to the subway on West Smiley avenue. The city's share will be paid by the $43,000 bond issue approved by the voters last fall for the improvement program.

Landing of British Troops Wipes Out Gallipoli Debacle

CREDIT GIVEN TO CHURCHILL IN MANEUVER

Stigma of Gallipoli Defeat Erased by War Lord of Great Britain.

By J. C. OESTRICHER
(INS Foreign Editor)

In ten words, 66-year-old Winston Churchill today erased from his escutcheon the stigma of defeat at Gallipoli a quarter of a century ago.

They embraced all there was of a communique issued by the British admiralty which he rules, announcing that British forces had landed successfully at several points in Norway and presumably were engaging the enemy.

Churchill planned and executed the Gallipoli campaign in the last war in an effort to seize and control the Dardanelles. The British navy did its part of it, but French and British armed forces failed to arrive in time and retreat was ordered after ghastly carnage at Cape Helles, Anzac Beach and Suvla Bay.

Since that black day just 22 years ago, efforts have been made to justify the Dardanelles campaign and to characterize the retreat as a masterpiece of strategy.

Was Crushed.

But Churchill himself was crushed by the defeat, never could understand why his carefully laid plans had failed so ignominiously, and prayed that the day might come when he could avenge it.

The ultimate outcome of Britain's initiative in Norway is still in the realm of speculation.

But nothing could be safer than the assumption that Churchill planned this manoeuvre even more carefully than he planned Gallipoli, then he was determined to take no chances of failure, and that with luck on their side the British may now be able to swing the balance of war.

Britain and the world for days had eagerly awaited some such development in fulfilment of British boasts and promises. Obviously, there was much to be done before such an audacious move could be given the least chance of success.

Slashing Attacks.

First, the German fleet had to be largely immobilized. This presumably was carried out through a series of slashing attacks by the British navy and air force. If official claims can be believed, these attacks have been overwhelmingly successful, with such important units of the Nazi navy as the battleships Scharnhorst and Admiral Scheer incapacitated.

Second, German waters had to be mined to bottle up the remnants of the German fleet and cut off the Nazi expeditionary force in Norway.

Thirdly, the determined but inexperienced Norwegian army had to be galvanized into action.

When the full story of the British landing is told it will make grand reading. The Germans obviously had all the advantages. The rocky coasts of Norway are admirably suited for defense and comparatively small batteries of heavy guns presumably could have kept the British fleet at bay indefinitely.

Since the German invasion of Scandinavia began, Britain has been accused of dilatory tactics. The Germans even said that their promises of assistance to Norway were not even worth the paper they were written on.

Today, it appears that the worst crime Britain can be accused of is secrecy. She obviously decided not to tip her hand until something of profound importance in the major course of the war had been achieved on Norway's rock-bound coast.

ALLIES HOLD CONTROL OF NORWAY WAR

Landing of British Forces Gives Them Upper Hand Over German Foes.

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

The sensational word of the landing of British expeditionary forces at several points on Norwegian soil means that the allied success in the battle for Norway has increased and that they control the situation at this juncture.

These landings represent coordination with the almost unbelievable feat of the English in breaking through the dangerous, narrow waters of the Kattegat from the North sea into Herr Hitler's own private Baltic sea and mining it clear from Keil to Lithuania.

The allied efforts to oust the Germans from Norway will progress in such degree as the Anglo-French are able to sever Nazi communications with the north.

The mine-laying, while lacking the spectacular aspects of conflict attendant upon landing of troops in the face of enemy resistance, likely transcends in importance the landings themselves.

Indeed, it seems from the facts at hand that it may prove to be one of the key-developments of the entire war.

This estimate must be qualified by the proviso that, pending further details, the mine-field is really the substantial affair which the British announcement indicates, and not merely a few mines strewn over an area of 100,000 square miles.

The significance of this is that the Anglo-French brotherhood couldn't carry out a major move of this sort without having at least temporarily seized control of both seas which wash Germany's northern coast.

This means that if the allies are able to maintain the position of control they will have severed the Reich entirely from all direct communication with Scandinavia.

That would be a severe blow to Nazi hopes, signalling among other things the ultimate collapse of the occupation of Norway, to be followed by the establishment of an allied northern front to menace Hitler's right wing.

All in all the Nazis would appear to be exemplifying the old oriental adage that he who rides a tiger finds it difficult to dismount.

Allied claims of destruction of German warships, transports and supply ships continues to pile up. This is a most serious matter for Germany's naval fighting arm, since it is very small compared with the allied fleets.

GREEN ACCUSES LEWIS OF PLOT

Declares CIO Chief Wants to Be Dictator Over U. S.; Hurls Challenge.

(By United Press)

FLINT, Mich.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, accused John L. Lewis Sunday of leading a secret revolutionary movement intended to make him dictator of the United States.

Green made clear his organization would not support a third party, which Lewis, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, threatened recently to organize. He warmly praised President Roosevelt in an address before 4,000 United Automobile Workers Union—AFL members preparing to vote in a General Motors bargaining election Wednesday.

"I charge that the leader of the CIO today is secretly planning a political revolution comparable to that which made Stalin the dictator of Soviet Russia, a political putsch comparable to that which made Hitler the dictator of Germany," Green said.

"I charge that this man, suffering from delusions of grandeur, is secretly desirous of becoming the dictator of the United States of America. If this is not his motive, I challenge him then to explain why he is playing the game of the Communist party in this country."

Green purported to find support for his charges in "the startling coincidence of the simultaneous and vicious attacks launched by him (Lewis) and the Communist party against the president of the United States the moment the president denounced the Stalin-Hitler pact" and in Lewis' failure to censure the pact and the invasions of Poland and Finland.

Green declared that while the AFL "does not presume to dictate the choice of presidential nominees, no man in America occupies a larger place in the hearts and affection of the masses and no man has done more for them than our beloved president, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Green defended the administration—in answer to Lewis' attacks on national economic conditions during an address here April 7—by citing accomplishments of federal agencies he said had benefited workers.

let he was carrying under his arm.

The robbery occurred shortly before noon last Friday while Schmutzler was on his way from the Richland Trust company to his establishment with the money.

He was stopped at North Main street and Library court by the gunmen. When he refused to hand over the wallet he was slugged over the head, the pair fleeing to their car where Carbeau waited at the wheel.

Bates said Justine had admitted the doing of the slugging.

The license number of the car and a complete description of the men was given police a few minutes after the robbery by Jeffries, who witnessed the hold-up.

Bates said the trio had used Justine's car for the hold-up, then had driven north out of the city to where they had parked Carbeau's automobile.

Carbeau and Cusato drove back to Ellwood City together and Justine drove his own car home.

The larger portion of the loot, $695 was discovered in Carbeau's car and home, Bates said, while $650, given to Cusato and Justine as their share was buried in a park near Ellwood City.

The pair led officers to the hiding place yesterday.

The trio was arrested after a license number of the hold-up car, turned over to police by William M Jeffries, manager of Nobil's Shoe store, who witnessed the robbery, was traced by Pennsylvania state police to Carbeau.

Carbeau, described as the "finger-man" by Bates, was arrested at his home in Ellwood City Saturday by Pennsylvania state police from New Castle. The other two were picked up at their homes in Ellwood City yesterday by state police, accompanied by Bates, County Prosecutor G. W. Mariott, and Detectives Lee J. Remy and Oscar Krupp.

Bates said a great deal of the credit for the arrest of the three men was due to Jeffries' quick-wittedness in noting the license number of the car, and in remembering what the three men looked like.

Arraignment of the trio is expected to be set for tomorrow in municipl court.

Temperature Climbs, Though 'Heat Wave' Loses Pep.

Already showing signs of losing its edge before it gets to Ohio, the midwestern "heat wave" shoved temperatures up to summer levels in the plains states today while Mansfield had a chilly 38 this morning and 50 at noon.

Showers were forecast for tonight as the weather warms up, but it will be cooler by tomorrow, the weatherman said.

The promised "heat wave" had its effect, however, for it was 20 degrees warmer in Mansfield today than the frigid 18 above recorded here early Sunday morning. The average temperature for the past 24 hours for 33.5 degrees, 12 below normal.

British Troops Land In Norway for Battle

Germany announced two more allied submarines had been sunk in the Skagerrak and a Norwegian torpedo boat captured.

The stalemate on the western front was unbroken as French and German forces settled back into their old positions after thrusts into each other's lines during the past 24 hours.

Confirmation, in part, for the British victory reports came from Berlin when the German high command acknowledged that the British had established a blockade of Narvik, Norway's far northern ore port and the likeliest toehold for the landing of an expeditionary force.

The Germans, however, did not go all the way on the British reports which included these:

That a belt of mines had been laid from a point off Keil, western Germany, through the Baltic to Lithuania, cutting across Germany's innermost maritime lifeline. How this was done without a head-on clash with the German high seas fleet was not clear.

That the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Scheer had been "successfully" torpedoed.

That Narvik, the object of two bitter naval engagements already, had been taken by the British and the Germans routed over the hills. This report, from a variety of sources, lacked official British confirmation.

That Stavanger, German-occupied port on the western Norwegian coast, was bombed last night. The London air ministry said all the attacking planes returned home despite fierce anti-aircraft fire.

On the Nazi side of the war ledger was the announcement that German troops had "further strengthened and consolidated" their positions in southern Norway and that seven allied submarines had been sunk in the past few days.

Both sides of the European war traded claims on the shooting down of planes—almost a commonplace since Germany swept into Denmark and Norway last Tuesday.

From somewhere in Norway—the locale hidden for fear of German air raids—King Haakon VII urged his people to fight on for "freedom and independence" while Norwegian soldiery still under arms for him appeared to be fighting a losing battle.

German lines, fanning outward from captured Oslo, shoved 3,000 men across the frontier into Sweden. Germany appeared to have occupied most of the territory within a 50 or 60-mile radius to the south, west and north of Oslo.

Caught in the backwash of war, Rome gave fresh indications that Italy—and other nations—soon might be in the swiftest of the current.

Giovanni Ansaldo, who often speaks for Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, declared in a broadcast to the troops yesterday that: "No people in Europe can isolate itself from the conflict."

Nazis Push Nearer To Swedish Border.

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—Sporadic fighting between German and Norwegian forces in southeastern Norway brought the invading Nazis nearer the Swedish border today while in the north the British were reported definitely masters of Narvik and preparing to land troops at that Arctic ore port.

Swedish authorities announced that 3,000 Norwegians, seemingly hard-pressed, had fled across the frontier near Halden at the southern-most tip of Norway and had been disarmed and interned. The Germans were said to have driven several miles beyond Halden to Kornsjo, a border station on the railway between Oslo and Goteborg, only to retire later.

There were reports however, that despite determined German efforts to clear out all resistance between Oslo and the Swedish border 30 miles away, Norwegian troops still were clinging to positions between Mysen and Kongsvinger. Mysen is about 15 miles southeast of Oslo and Kongsvinger about 35 miles northeast of the capital, not far from the Swedish border.

A recapitulation of reports indicated that the Germans had occupied most of the territory within a 50 or 60-mile radius to the south, west and north of Oslo.

Frederikstad, Sarpsborg, Holmestrand, Kongsberg, Drammen and Hokksund, all south or west of the capital, were reported in Nazi hands. North of the city the Germans were said to be holding all the area to Lake Mjosen, including the towns of Jevnaker, Lillestrom, Romerike, Honefoss and Eidsvold.

German troops also were deported to have occupied Elverum, which is about 35 miles from Oslo and north and slightly to the east of Lake Mjosen. This village, where the government stopped temporarily after abandoning Oslo, was said to be in ruins, with scarcely a wall standing.

Germans Admit Allies Blockading Narvik.

BULLETIN

COPENHAGEN—(INS)—(via Berlin)—The German legation at Copenhagen today denied the battleship Armiral Scheer has been torpedoed and said the warship is undamaged.

BERLIN—(AP)—Germany today announced two more allied submarines had been sunk in the Skagerrak, a Norweigian torpedo boat captured and a German merchant ship sunk by British air raiders at Bergen.

Establishment of a strong British naval blockade of Narvik, important northern Norwegian ore port, also was acknowledged by the Germans who said their southern forces had "crushed" Norway's attempt to mobilize in the Oslo region.

The high command, in a communique, declared the two new submarines raised to seven the losses of Allied undersea craft in recent days. Two British air raiders which sank a German merchant ship at Bergen subsequently were shot down, the communique declared.

Shedding only slight light on Germany's land operations in Norway, the communique reported capture of Honfoss in the Oslo area and said Norwegian efforts to mobilize had been "crushed" in that region.

The captured Norwegian torpedoboat Hval will be put into service with a German crew, the announcement stated.

The course of the northern struggle between British and German air and sea forces is obscure from this point.

Indications of cautious official disclosures are that the fight is still on, with each side taking heavy blows but unable or hesitant to try for the knockout punch.

Germans insist that there has been no headon clash of the grand fleets but rather that the the week of war linked with Scandinavia has been chiefly a series of comparatively minor engagements between segments of the naval forces.

Yesterday's communique spoke of several British destroyers damaged and "in some instances destroyed" and said the British destroyer Cossack was hit, fired and forced aground.

It also said that a British cruiser of the Glasgow class had been torpedoed north of the Shetland islands and three Allied submarines destroyed by pursuit planes in the Skagerrak.

The communique presented but a sketchy picture of land operations. German defensive works were said to have been strengthened and extended in Norway at Trondheim, Bergen, Stavanger and Kristiansand, while German troops in the Oslo region fanned out to the north, east and west, occupying Sarpsborg, Askim and other unidentified towns.

One hundred Norwegian army officers and 1,500 men laid down their arms before the German advance at Heidstadtmon, the communique said. The high command also announced British air raids of Saturday on Narvik, Stavanger and Bergen but said they "failed to inflict damage on military objectives."

Of the western front, the high command said, two detachments of storm troops penetrated "some kilometers" past the French border southwest of Merzig, entered an enemy position, defeated the forces manning it, destroyed four shelters and took prisoners."

Balkans Decide On Own Danubian Patrol.

(By Associated Press)

BUDAPEST—(INS)—Determined to resist demands by either Great Britain or Germany, Rumania and Yugoslavia have agreed upon measures for joint control and policing of the Danube, it was learned in Budapest today.

Fears of British sabotage to forestall supplies to Germany and recurrent rumors of forthcoming German demands for Danubian sovereignty led to the step.

Henceforth, the river police of both countries will co-operate actively.

"The Balkan countries will endeavor to show Germany that they are able to guard the Danube themselves," a well-informed Hungarian observer said.

Low Countries Keep Alert Frontier Watch.

THE HAGUE—(AP)—The low countries, determined not to be taken unawares by any threatening moves of Europe's warring powers, maintained an alert watch on their frontiers today but official circles were outwardly calm and there were few signs of public anxiety over the future.

Special defense measures were taken in both the Netherlands and Belgium, but these were closely guarded as military secrets. Theaters and cafes in all the larger cities did a normal peacetime business.

Government circles expressed indignation over foreign reports that there was imminent possibility of action by either the Germans or the Allies which might spread the war to the lowlands.

In Belgium, however, an organization of World war veterans suggested creation of a large auxiliary police force recruited from their ranks and designation of concentration camp sites where undesirable foreigners might be detained.

alley, said that the victim's head had been severed at the shoulders and his hands cut off at the wrists. They described the dissection as poorly done by someone unfamiliar with anatomy.

The torso was wrapped in a Red River Valley, N. D., potato sack and legs, which had been cut at the knees, and thighs, were in a South American coffee bag.

Police believed the victim had been murdered and the body brought to the West Madison street alley. They said they believed the missing members might indicate that the slayers had attempted to frustrate efforts to identify the victim from fingerprints.

A coroner's physician who made a preliminary examination of the torso and legs said that the man apparently had been dead four to eight hours. He estimated the age of the man at 40 to 50 years and said there were no identifying marks on the body.

He said the man's body appeared to be that of a man of position and not a resident of the Madison street area which is frequented by vagrants.

PLANS PROJECT

Shelby Seeks WPA Aid for $41,000 Subway.

SHELBY—Shelby's $41,000 subway project for the West Smiley avenue crossing of the New York Central railroad today had been filed for approval as a WPA project with WPA officials at Columbus, Mayor W. R. Morris announced.

If approved by WPA, the project will receive federal grants for labor, while the city pays for the material and other construction costs. Skilled and semi-skilled WPA labor would be used because of the kind of construction work, city officials pointed out.

Plans for the subway were approved by railroad officials at the estimated cost of $41000 which does not include street approaches to the subway on West Smiley avenue. The city's share will be paid by the $43,000 bond issue approved by the voters last fall for the improvement program.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT BEER AND BREWING

100 INDUSTRIES BENEFIT FROM BEER AND ALE

Did you know that the return of beer and ale brought increased business to more than 100 industries? It did. Services and materials were needed. New jobs were made for workers.

WHY BEER IS THE BEVERAGE OF MODERATION

Beer's alcoholic content is very low...lower than any other alcoholic beverage. That is why it is called "the beverage of moderation." You are not likely to get in trouble if you stick to beer.

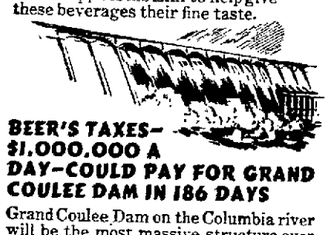
OLDER THAN THE PYRAMIDS OF EGYPT

Beer has been brewed since the beginnings of recorded history in many parts of the world. It was known in ancient Egypt, in China, and the Euphrates valley.

NATURE MAKES BEER!

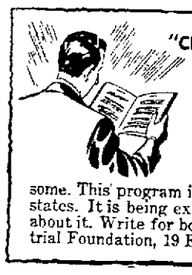
A simple natural process produces beer and ale from water, malted grain and hops. The brewer applies his skill to help give these beverages their fine taste.

BOUGHT BY BEER AND ALE: 25 BILLION POUNDS OF FARM PRODUCTS. Steadily, year after year, the brewing industry gives American farmers a big order for farm products. That's a help farmers appreciate.



BEER'S TAXES—$1,000,000 A DAY—COULD PAY FOR GRAND COULEE DAM IN 186 DAYS

Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia river will be the most massive structure ever built by man. Beer's taxes—Federal, State and local—could quickly pay for it.



"CLEAN-UP OR CLOSE-UP" A NEW PLAN TO PROTECT BEER RETAILING

One of the most interesting things about beer and ale is the brewing industry's program to keep retailing wholesome. This program is now in effect in a number of states. It is being extended. Landing of British Troops Wipes Out Gallipoli Debacle

CREDIT GIVEN TO CHURCHILL IN MANEUVER

By J. C. OESTRICHER
(INS Foreign Editor)

They embraced all there was of a communique issued by the British admiralty which he rules, announcing that British forces had landed successfully at several points in Norway and presumably were engaging the enemy.

Churchill planned and executed the Gallipoli campaign in the last war in an effort to seize and control the Dardanelles. The British navy did its part of it, but French and British armed forces failed to arrive in time and retreat was ordered after ghastly carnage at Cape Helles, Anzac Beach and Suvla Bay.

Since that black day just 22 years ago, efforts have been made to justify the Dardanelles campaign and to characterize the retreat as a masterpiece of strategy.

Was Crushed.

But Churchill himself was crushed by the defeat, never could understand why his carefully laid plans had failed so ignominiously, and prayed that the day might come when he could avenge it.

The ultimate outcome of Britain's initiative in Norway is still in the realm of speculation.

But nothing could be safer than the assumption that Churchill planned this manoeuvre even more carefully than he planned Gallipoli, then he was determined to take no chances of failure, and that with luck on their side the British may now be able to swing the balance of war.

Britain and the world for days had eagerly awaited some such development in fulfilment of British boasts and promises. Obviously, there was much to be done before such an audacious move could be given the least chance of success.

Slashing Attacks.

First, the German fleet had to be largely immobilized. This presumably was carried out through a series of slashing attacks by the British navy and air force. If official claims can be believed, these attacks have been overwhelmingly successful, with such important units of the Nazi navy as the battleships Scharnhorst and Admiral Scheer incapacitated.

Second, German waters had to be mined to bottle up the remnants of the German fleet and cut off the Nazi expeditionary force in Norway.

When the full story of the British landing is told it will make grand reading. The Germans obviously had all the advantages. The rocky coasts of Norway are admirably suited for defense and comparatively small batteries of heavy guns presumably could have kept the British fleet at bay indefinitely.

Since the German invasion of Scandinavia began, Britain has been accused of dilatory tactics. The Germans even said that their promises of assistance to Norway were not even worth the paper they were written on.

Today, it appears that the worst crime Britain can be accused of is secrecy. She obviously decided not to tip her hand until something of profound importance in the major course of the war had been achieved on Norway's rock-bound coast.

ALLIES HOLD CONTROL OF NORWAY WAR

Landing of British Forces Gives Them Upper Hand Over German Foes.

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

The sensational word of the landing of British expeditionary forces at several points on Norwegian soil means that the allied success in the battle for Norway has increased and that they control the situation at this juncture.

These landings represent coordination with the almost unbelievable feat of the English in breaking through the dangerous, narrow waters of the Kattegat from the North sea into Herr Hitler's own private Baltic sea and mining it clear from Keil to Lithuania.

The allied efforts to oust the Germans from Norway will progress in such degree as the Anglo-French are able to sever Nazi communications with the north.

The mine-laying, while lacking the spectacular aspects of conflict attendant upon landing of troops in the face of enemy resistance, likely transcends in importance the landings themselves.

Indeed, it seems from the facts at hand that it may prove to be one of the key-developments of the entire war.

This estimate must be qualified by the proviso that, pending further details, the mine-field is really the substantial affair which the British announcement indicates, and not merely a few mines strewn over an area of 100,000 square miles.

The significance of this is that the Anglo-French brotherhood couldn't carry out a major move of this sort without having at least temporarily seized control of both seas which wash Germany's northern coast.

This means that if the allies are able to maintain the position of control they will have severed the Reich entirely from all direct communication with Scandinavia.

That would be a severe blow to Nazi hopes, signalling among other things the ultimate collapse of the occupation of Norway, to be followed by the establishment of an allied northern front to menace Hitler's right wing.

All in all the Nazis would appear to be exemplifying the old oriental adage that he who rides a tiger finds it difficult to dismount.

Allied claims of destruction of German warships, transports and supply ships continues to pile up. This is a most serious matter for Germany's naval fighting arm, since it is very small compared with the allied fleets.

GREEN ACCUSES LEWIS OF PLOT

(By United Press)

FLINT, Mich.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, accused John L. Lewis Sunday of leading a secret revolutionary movement intended to make him dictator of the United States.

Green made clear his organization would not support a third party, which Lewis, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, threatened recently to organize. He warmly praised President Roosevelt in an address before 4,000 United Automobile Workers Union—AFL members preparing to vote in a General Motors bargaining election Wednesday.

"I charge that the leader of the CIO today is secretly planning a political revolution comparable to that which made Stalin the dictator of Soviet Russia, a political putsch comparable to that which made Hitler the dictator of Germany," Green said.

"I charge that this man, suffering from delusions of grandeur, is secretly desirous of becoming the dictator of the United States of America. If this is not his motive, I challenge him then to explain why he is playing the game of the Communist party in this country."

Green purported to find support for his charges in "the startling coincidence of the simultaneous and vicious attacks launched by him (Lewis) and the Communist party against the president of the United States the moment the president denounced the Stalin-Hitler pact" and in Lewis' failure to censure the pact and the invasions of Poland and Finland.

Green declared that while the AFL "does not presume to dictate the choice of presidential nominees, no man in America occupies a larger place in the hearts and affection of the masses and no man has done more for them than our beloved president, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Green defended the administration—in answer to Lewis' attacks on national economic conditions during an address here April 7—by citing accomplishments of federal agencies he said had benefited workers.

let he was carrying under his arm.

The robbery occurred shortly before noon last Friday while Schmutzler was on his way from the Richland Trust company to his establishment with the money.

He was stopped at North Main street and Library court by the gunmen. When he refused to hand over the wallet he was slugged over the head, the pair fleeing to their car where Carbeau waited at the wheel.

Bates said Justine had admitted the doing of the slugging.

The license number of the car and a complete description of the men was given police a few minutes after the robbery by Jeffries, who witnessed the hold-up.

Bates said the trio had used Justine's car for the hold-up, then had driven north out of the city to where they had parked Carbeau's automobile.

The larger portion of the loot, $695 was discovered in Carbeau's car and home, Bates said, while $650, given to Cusato and Justine as their share was buried in a park near Ellwood City.

The pair led officers to the hiding place yesterday.

The trio was arrested after a license number of the hold-up car, turned over to police by William M. Jeffries, manager of Nobil's Shoe store, who witnessed the robbery, was traced by Pennsylvania state police to Carbeau.

Carbeau, described as the "finger-man" by Bates, was arrested at his home in Ellwood City Saturday by Pennsylvania state police from New Castle. The other two were picked up at their homes in Ellwood City yesterday by state police, accompanied by Bates, County Prosecutor G. W. Mariott, and Detectives Lee J. Remy and Oscar Krupp.

Bates said a great deal of the credit for the arrest of the three men was due to Jeffries' quick-wittedness in noting the license number of the car, and in remembering what the three men looked like.

Arraignment of the trio is expected to be set for tomorrow in municipl court.

Temperature Climbs, Though 'Heat Wave' Loses Pep.

Already showing signs of losing its edge before it gets to Ohio, the midwestern "heat wave" shoved temperatures up to summer levels in the plains states today while Mansfield had a chilly 38 this morning and 50 at noon.

Showers were forecast for tonight as the weather warms up, but it will be cooler by tomorrow, the weatherman said.

The promised "heat wave" had its effect, however, for it was 20 degrees warmer in Mansfield today than the frigid 18 above recorded here early Sunday morning. The average temperature for the past 24 hours for 33.5 degrees, 12 below normal.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, APRIL 15, 1940.

It isn't operating a car that makes it obsolete, says an expert, so much as Old Father Time. And it's about the same with people.

Word comes that a strike of diamond cutters is near settlement—before causing any considerable hardships to the consuming public.

Happy is the commission salesman who can tell the census taker that he can't be sure whether his income is under or over the $5,000 mark.

Communism, Old and New

A STRANGE thing about communism, in this present-day world, is its cruelty and apparent appetite for dislike and hatred. The typical communist individual or group, even while seeking converts, seems to act deliberately in such a way as to invite the dislike and enmity of normal men and women.

Perhaps this malevolent streak is beneficial, everything considered, because by alienating normal people it keeps them from joining its ranks, where they are free to choose. The normal thing is for propagandists to seek converts by exhibiting the more friendly, courteous and pleasant phases of human nature instead of its ugly sides.

The contrast is especially strong when thought is given to the communist groups in this country before the days of Marx, Lenin and Stalin. They were called "communities" then. There were the famous Brook Farm Community, the Oneida Community, Quaker Communities and many others, and some famous literary men of the last century belonged to them.

They lived a community life and owned things in common, and worked in common, but there the resemblance ends. They had no dictators. They preached and practiced love, not hate. They opposed war and violence of all kinds. They aimed to perfect human nature. To them, the cruelties and excesses of Russian Communism would have been incredible.

Warns Against Phone Solicitation

REPORTING on a recent investigation of telephone solicitations, the Cleveland Better Business Bureau revealed that professional promoters or solicitors were used in a majority of the solicitations investigated—with the professional's "cut" usually running from 25% to 75% of gross receipts.

Advising that all such solicitations should be investigated before any donations or purchases were made, the Bureau gave a number of reasons why this should be done. Here are some of them:

"Facts about the purpose of the solicitation are frequently concealed or distorted;

"Your donation may serve no worth-while cause, and provides the means for further fraudulent activity;

"High pressure tactics, threats, etc., are frequent when persuasion fails;

"One professional promoter told us that organizations average less than 33 1-3% of the gross when he works;

"Many telephone solicitations are entirely fraudulent . . . one faker lived in good style for eight years on donations made by business men;

"If the solicitor uses your first name but you can't remember him—BE CAREFUL."

While this survey, and the suggestions offered, were intended to apply specifically to Cleveland, professional telephone soliciting has spread to many smaller cities, including Mansfield, and the advice to investigate before donating is equally applicable here.

Chooses Child as Third Bride

EXCEPT for the fact that the bride is 16 and the groom 43—twice divorced—there need be no particular public interest in Saturday's marriage of George Jessel and Lois Andrew.

While 16 is quite generally regarded as too young for marriage in other than the torrid zone, where physical maturity comes earlier in life, instances of child marriages have not been uncommon in the United States and in some of the more benighted sections girls as young as 12 or 14 have been married—although mental subnormality was frequently indicated in these cases.

Time was, not so long ago, when the marriage of a middle-aged man to a mere child of 16 would have been regarded as disgraceful conduct on the part of the man, who would have been sneeringly referred to as a "cradle snatcher"—but that was back in the horse-and-buggy days, before some of the favorites of stage, screen and radio had set up a marital code of their own.

Some idea of this changed attitude is gained from the announcement that so important a personage as James H. R. Cromwell, United States minister to Canada, "gave the bride in marriage," and that the wedding was permitted in what is ordinarily regarded as one of the more enlightened states—Michigan, which is one of the five states in which common law prevails, permitting marriages (with consent) at 14 years for males and 12 years for females, or "without consent" at 18 years of age for either male or female. Tennessee, at which aspersions are sometimes cast in the matter of child marriages, places 16 as the minimum age at which children can marry "with consent."

Close-Up Reveals Intoxication

OUT in Fresno county, California, they have hit on a new use for a motion picture camera—and have found a way to secure court convictions in many more drunken driving cases.

Last year Fresno county found itself at the top of the state's list of traffic death rates and decided to do something to reduce the drunken driving menace, after finding that evidence was often insufficient to warn conviction.

Sobriety tests are now conducted before a motion picture camera and it has been found that a close-up of the eyes and facial expression never fails to disclose intoxication.

Fines have thus far more than paid for the costs of the motion pictures and convictions have increased from 50% to more than 90% in court trials of drunken drivers. Two other California cities have already adopted the plan and others are considering it.

A recording of the drunk's conversation at the time of arrest is also practicable as a part of police department equipment, and can be used to supplement the evidence presented by the motion picture.

Now that the food value of grass is being dwelt upon, morning exercise may include clipping a nice dish of breakfast food.

Watching Trends

WASHINGTON — The boys from the south rule our navy and if any enemy is blasted off the seven seas with an American war cry, it'll be the Rebel Yell.

Investigation by one of the government departments recently disclosed that three out of every four gobs call Dixie, home. A federal labor department investigator found that there were more applicants for enlistment in the navy from Raleigh, N. C., and Macon, Ga., than from either New York or Chicago.

The same holds true of the army, but to a lesser degree. The reason, of course, has to do with unemployment in the army and navy enlistment age range.

GORDON DEAN, of the department of justice, without making a single slip of tongue or memory, found himself confronted with one of those embarrassing moments the other day that should only beset the bedeviled.

Before a large assembly of august district attorneys, Mr. Dean was called upon to introduce brawny, nervous O. John Rogge, assistant attorney general in charge of criminal prosecution. Mr. Dean glanced briefly at Mr. Rogge, sitting a row or two in front of him, took the rostrum and launched into an encomium—praising the accomplishments of the man who has directed many of the government's recent important prosecutions.

At some length, he finished with: "Gentlemen, I give you Mr. O. John Rogge. . . ."

The moment of silence lengthened to agonizing seconds. Mr. Dean stared wildly at the spot where Mr. Rogge should have been and saw only an empty chair.

Ushers in the back of the room scurried into the halls. A block away down the long dpartment of justice building corridor, Mr. Roggie was found arguing a point of law with an acquaintance. Unable to sit still any longer, the big, restless prosecutor had walked out on his own introductory address.

ALEXANDRIA, VA., the historic Washington suburg (when the folks over there hear I called it a suburb, there'll be mayhem, murder and arson—but how else could you describe a town that is knitted closely into a city), is holding its annual open house.

One of America's most famous ports 200 years ago, Alexandria is one of the most fascinating spots hereabouts. Every year, in the spring, residents of the famous old houses throw their homes or gardens open for a tourist trek that sends historians and antique collectors into a swoon. This year, on the itinerary, is the beautiful old Georgian home of Mr. Justice and Mrs. Hugo Black and the narcissus-clouded garden of Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Davis.

Health And Diet

Value of Sunlight To the Body.

—By DR. CLENDENING

Does exposure to sunlight add anything to the body?

One of the early theories of the nature of light described by Newton was that it consisted of a number of fine particles. This was the so-called "corpuscular theory." Later it was decided that light was a mode of motion, but in modern days it seems to have changed its ground and gone back to the Newtonian theory, that sunlight is a substance, fine particles in rapid motion—the most rapid motion known, 186,000 miles per second.

Sunlight definitely has an effect on the body. The sun's rays are the greatest source of energy known. The green leaves of the vegetables are the most efficient trap for this energy, and when we eat green vegetables and fruit, we acquire by indirect methods some of the sun's energy. This, however, should always be supplemented by exposure to the sun itself.

Man was supposed to live in the sun. It actually creates food. Experiments have shown that when guinea pigs are given a prepared food which lacks several elements necessary for maintaining life and health, and are kept in the dark on this diet, they grow deformed and crippled. But if they are placed in the sunlight for half an hour, even though they are on this same diet, they grow in a healthy way; the bones grow well and no crippling occurs. Even when the crippled guinea pigs are placed in the sunshine, they begin to improve immediately without making any change in their diet.

The ultra-violet rays of sunlight are a very efficient, vitalizing agent. Pneumonia, influenza and other infections are most prevalent in the geographical regions where sunlight is absent a large part of the time.

Should an expectant mother eat foods containing iron?

Yes, and she should also sometimes take pure iron in addition to iron-containing foods.

Among the most important results of the recent intensive interest in the study of blood conditions has been to show the frequency of a certain type of anemia in pregnant women due to iron-deficiency. It is part of the routine job of an obstetrician when he first examines an expectant mother to make an examination of the blood and this should be done at frequent intervals during the entire progress of the pregnancy. This is one of the important duties of the modern doctor in care of what is known as "prenatal care."

The public should be educated in this and the mother should cooperate with the doctor by submitting to monthly visits so that her condition may be checked frequently during the period she is carrying the child.

What Is Adventure?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(A letter to American Youth—and discontented elders.)

SO YOU HATE your humdrum life—And you wish you could have been one of that rollicking crowd who rolled West in a covered wagon, or part of that tumultuous pageant that built the cities in its wake. Adventure, that's the dish you're hungering for, is it? And you're quite sure you'd be infinitely kinder and gayer and more generous if you could run ruddy risks instead of doing commonplace chores.

Well, I was one of the "tumultuous pageant" you so envy. I know adventure. And I'm here to tell you that it isn't what you think. Nor do you get it the way you imagine.

Adventure doesn't mean a new horizon . . . a dangerous trail filled with yip-yipping Indians, whoop-whooping prospectors and mustachioed gamblers. Adventure means simply—getting away from yourself. And grabbing the first hand grip that'll get you there. Which you can do quite as well in 1940 as we did in 1880.

This glamorous picture you have of frontier life is the bunk and nothing else but. Nine-tenths of our frontier life was bare as a bone and as sterile of drama and amusement. There were less opportunities for advancing oneself than there are fleas on a frog.

If you wanted to go anywhere, you went, mostly, on your own hind legs, with blisters. No one had comforts. No one had cash. And most of the two-gun men had to go home at night after selling stocks all day and tend the baby while the missus went to the Ladies' Aid.

And yet life flamed in the old wild west. It flamed because people had curiosity in their own hearts, and enthusiasm, and faith. It flamed because those tremendous skies—those infinite distances—were such a challenge that something rose in the heart of the smallest man and answered their mighty chant.

So we had adventure, though we had none of the makings you expect today. We had adventure because we were willing to get outside of ourselves. The pickings were scanty but we grabbed what they were. Trivial chores they were for the most part. Feeble risks. Scant merry-making. But the invincible youth in us took each in its turn, going on and on—and before we knew it we were far enough away from our own private lives and peeves to be part of the drama of that far-flung fantasy we call the Old Wild West.

So today you see us in the movies and grind your teeth in envy. But if anything like a Hollywood movie ever happened in the real Wild West it must have been when I was in a coma with an ether cone over my nose. Yes, I saw plenty of doings. But none of them happened spontaneously. They happened because we had the will and the grit to go on and go-getem . . . because we had the enthusiasm to weave drama out of drab dribblings.

Where we had one glint of romance, you have a thousand. You can make of your life an Arabian Nights, an Enchanted Carpet to waft you into the Never Never Land. But the trouble with most of you is—

YOU DON'T WANT TO PAY THE PRICE.

You want adventure to happen to you like the measles. You want somebody to come along and hand you boots, spurs and chaps—Spanish comb and mantilla—and maybe nail up a stage or import a horse for your special benefit.

Snap out of it, Kid. There is just one rule if you want adventure, and this is it—grab what's next and get going away from yourself. You're the only thing that's cramping your adventure—you and your stale little round of pouts and pleasures. You and your stagnant little vision of success.

Turn your back on them toward anything that's new and different, however small or unworthy of you it may seem. Turn your back and reach out for life by any means that come to you—and life will open to you. And there, beyond the low, cramped hills of yourself, you will see the fires flaming and the peaks rising to the stars.

The Census Taker

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE CENSUS TAKER was at our house when I came home. He was an honest, ruddy, blue-eyed farmer from our own valley and I knew at once that I would gladly tell him anything he asked—but my wife had already divulged nearly everything. You know how that is!

Our family's names filled a good section of the page—but the joke was on Uncle Sam for the baby's name fell on the line that must answer those impertinent questions about numbers of marriages, etc., and since he's only six months old he is still fairly easy to answer for.

Our hens and goats have been frequently mentioned here, both as to quantity and quality of production. Since we lived on three different farms last year, our farming was too thinly spread to rate. The less one has the less time it takes to tell it. Uncle Malachi used to say, in such a case, "Blessed be nothing."

Our young daughter, having been born in another state, caused an interval on the big book. That proved she said that she "just couldn't be taken for granted." Our four-year-old was glad his birthday was just past so that he could be counted as old as possible. In order to get him registered as white his sister hurried to bring a cloth and soapy water.

Being naturally inquisitive, we asked a few ourselves.

"How do you like your job?"

The census taker smiled and included the several big sheets spread across the kitchen table in his glance. "Oh, it's not bad, but a fellow don't get the hang of it all at once. Believe me, if I'd known it meant all this pedtapse somebody else'd had the job. There's more'n 200 questions on each farmer's blank and where they own a lot of stock it takes an hour or two. Half the time I have to help 'em figure up as they go along. It keeps me jogging to get in eight calls a day."

"Does anybody object to the questions?"

"I haven't had any trouble. They told me the women wouldn't tell their ages—but they will—and their husband's too. I've got ten days to work yet. I'd hoped this job would be done in February, but it didn't turn out that way."

"How many acres do you farm?"

"A hundred. If the weather gets warm and settled I'll be right glad to turn in all this and get at my plowing. Somebody else can do it ten years from now."

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—As far as it can be pieced together from American and foreign diplomatic sources, the Nazi plan to invade Denmark and Norway appears to have been hatched almost on the eve of Sumner Welles' departure from Europe.

During the Welles visit in Berlin, Hitler and von Ribbentrop had made it quite clear that they were anxious for a negotiated peace—in other words, a peace largely on their terms, by which Poland and Czechoslovakia, though politically independent, would remain under the Nazi economic wing.

The Nazi leaders also made it quite clear that if such a peace were not negotiated, Germany was determined to win the war, and they made comparisons with the Allied war strength to prove they could do it.

With the failure of a negotiated peace, Hitler then began to carry out his threat. In fact, there is every evidence that he laid the groundwork to carry it out even before Welles departed, and during his conference with Mussolini at Brennero.

Why Hitler Moved.

TWO considerations decided Hitler to move rapidly, according to word which comes from his Italian allies.

First was the fact that the Allies still are unprepared, especially in the air, and Hitler wanted to strike before they would be fully prepared in the fall.

Second, Hitler knew that there was not much danger of heavy U. S. war sales to the Allies until after the presidential election.

After the election, Hitler figured that American sympathies might loosen up the Johnson Act (barring loans to defaulted governments), and the United States might become a wholesale supplier of Allied war materials—on a credit basis.

Unquestionably it was in preparation for the Scandinavian conquest that Hitler released the white paper reporting the conversations between Polish and American diplomats. The timing was perfect—one week before his blitzkrieg—and beautifully calculated to make Washington lean over backward for neutrality.

Tremendous War Forces.

AT PRESENT the Germans have 68 divisions located along the Dutch border and in Denmark. U. S. military experts figure that this is enough men—about 952,000—to penetrate the Netherlands almost overnight, and simultaneously attack the weakest part of the Maginot Line, opposite Luxembourg.

Once the Nazis are in Holland, they would be only about 150 miles from British industrial centers—so close that German pursuit planes could accompany German bombers, thus protecting them while they rained death and destruction on British factories and naval bases.

The prospects are that all or most of these things will happen at once. Furthermore it will be no surprise if Mussolini also gets into the war—against the French in North Africa. But first he wants to make sure that the German moves are going to be successful.

Norwegian Diplomat.

THERE is no rejoicing these days in the heart of Hans Thomsen, charge d'affaires of the German embassy. Some Germans tossed their hats in the air at news of the invasion of Norway, but not Thomsen.

Reason is that Thomsen is a Norwegian by descent, though born in Hamburg, Germany. He is intimately acquainted with Norway, and is a friend of the Norwegian Minister in Washington, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne.

In fact, the German foreign office, in keeping with its policy to encourage linguistic skill in diplomats, pays Thomsen a bonus of $10 each month as a reward for his command of the Norwegian language.

German Subterfuge.

MORE complete details on how the Nazis swooped down on Norway have now come back to the state, war and navy departments. They show the minute care and cleverness with which Germany prepared for this sudden blow.

The British intelligence service had word a week before the occupation of Norway that the German fleet was getting ready to move. But they could not discover exactly what the move was to be, except that it was to involve Norway and Denmark.

British spies were able to keep tabs on the activity of the German fleet in the Baltic in taking on supplies and men ready for an engagement. But the most important thing they missed was the departure of the vanguard of the Nazi troops which occupied Norway.

In fact, this vanguard was already in Norway, though the Norwegians didn't know it.

They had come up several days in advance and tied up in Norwegian harbors, where the troops, dressed as sailors and supercargoes, went about the unloading of supplies as if there on regular business.

Came the time to attack, and they went below, put on their uniforms, brought out their guns and grenades, and occupied the cities. The Norwegians were taken completely by surprise.

This explains how the Nazis were able to land in Norway even before many of their warships had arrived from Germany.

Daisy Harriman's Scoop.

MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN, U. S. minister to Norway, scooped the world on the German occupation by being smart enough to send her cable to the state department uncoded, so that it would pass through the telegraph offices more easily. After having sent the telegram she then went to the Norwegian minister of communications and made him put through a special telephone call, all in order to be doubly sure that her government was informed.

Most of this happened in the wee small hours of the morning. Then, after arranging as far as possible for the evacuation of Americans, Mrs. Harriman was forced as chief of the American legation to retreat with the Norwegian government inland, as all chiefs of missions are obliged to do. But she left behind a well-equipped staff to take care of the Americans in Oslo.

Danish Virgin Islands.

NOT many people realize it, but Hitler's conquest of Denmark at last justifies the U. S. purchase of what Herbert Hoover called "an effective poorhouse"—the Virgin Islands.

Bought from Denmark in 1917 for $25,000,000, most congressmen consider the Virgin Islands a bad bargain. They are supported partially through congressional appropriations every year.

But if the Virgin Islands still were Danish when the Nazis walked into Denmark last week, the United States would have been confronted with the prospect of a German submarine base not far from the Panama Canal. For Germany automatically would have inherited title to the Danish West Indies, or at least have claimed title.

All of which gives Senator Reynolds of North Carolina a certain amount of ammunition for his proposal to write off British and French war debts in return for their island possessions in American waters.

CHAPTER XVI

A dull flush had crept into his cheeks and his lips had drawn into a tight line before she finished speaking, but before he could say a word in his own defense a crash sounded from the kitchen.

"Jack again," Elaine exclaimed, grateful for the timely interruption. She would have to speak with Jane later on about her remarks. After all, whether she liked Eric or not, she could have been more gentle with him. And it was silly of her to continue to accuse him of being weak. How many men of Jane's acquaintance would be willing to throw aside a fortune for the girl they loved?"

"Jack isn't going to get away with breaking all my dishes!" Jane exclaimed heatedly, rising from the chair. "You would think he'd be a little more careful." She turned in the direction of the kitchen but before she had moved a foot the door was flung open. Elaine saw the gun in the man's hand as he came through the door and she felt a cold chill in her heart.

"Oke, sister," the pimply-faced youth snarled, coming into the room. "Just you go over there on the couch and take it easy."

"Babies shouldn't play with guns," Jane said, backing slowly toward the couch. Her chin was high and her eyes unafraid. "And if you think you're going to get anything from us you have another guess coming. There are three of us to your one."

"And six slugs in here make everything even," the thug said menacingly, tapping the gun with his left hand. His beady eyes flickered impatiently at Elaine and Eric who were standing rigid near the piano. "Come on, Dreamy Eyes," he commanded Elaine. "I ain't got all day to waste even if you are kinda nice-lookin."

She should feel afraid, should be backing cautiously towards the couch, but Elaine didn't move, her body consumed by a fiery rage that swept away all reason. With a scornful, reckless laugh she took a slow step in his direction. "If you think I'm going to let a miserable coward like you order me around you're sadly mistaken," she said icily. "Now you get out of this house before I call the police."

His eyes flickered nervously as she took another step in his direction and Elaine could see his finger tense around the trigger. But he wouldn't shoot. Somehow she was sure he lacked the nerve.

"Go ahead shoot!" she commanded scornfully. "I dare you to pull that trigger!"

"Get back!" he cried wildly. "Get back or I'll let you have it!" His face was ashen and the pimples stood out redly on his cheeks. He raised his arm and pointed the gun squarely at Elaine. "Get back or—or I'll kill you!"

Where was Eric? Why didn't he come to help her? Elaine felt her nerves draw taut as bowstrings as she continued her slow advance. She couldn't stop now! Even if she wanted to she couldn't stop. Rage had taken away her reason. Dreamy Eyes! How—how dare he insult any woman like that? Slowly, very slowly, she took another step, then another, and then suddenly, with a wild cry of fear, the thug hurled the gun directly at her head. Elaine ducked swiftly as it skimmed past her, but before she could move again towards the crook he was running through the kitchen door. She followed him swiftly, but even as she burst into the room she knew she was too late. The crook had leaped through the window and Elaine stopped stock-still near the stove as she heard him clatter his way down the fire-escape steps.

"You crazy dope!" Jane shouted, drawing her into the living-room. "Don't you want to live? For Pete's sakes, what ever made you do such an idiotic thing?"

Elaine felt nervous tears well in her eyes and she sagged limply against Jane. It wasn't until that moment that she realized that deep, deep in her heart she had been afraid, that subconsciously she had been tensing her body in the expectation of being shot. She passed a trembling hand over her eyes. "He—he just made me angry!" she told Jane, simply.

Jane shook her head as though to imply that all this was far beyond her capacity to understand She led Elaine across the room and seated her on the couch.

"Elaine!" Eric's face was taut and pale as he sank to his knees before her. "You scared me out of a year's growth. You should have had better sense. Why, he might have shot you."

"Not with this gun," Jane declared in an amazed voice, breaking open the revolver. "It—it isn't loaded!"

Elaine had half guessed this when the crook hurled the revolver at her and she smiled to hear her guess confirmed. But the smile fled from her lips as she caught the peculiar expression that still remained on Eric's face.

"Eric, what's wrong?" she queried anxiously. "You act as though you've never seen me before."

He stood up and turned away, face still pale and drawn, eyes a vertible pool of agony.

"I never did see you this way before," he told her haltingly. "And besides, I—I . . ."

Before he could finish speaking Jane walked over to him and handed him his hat. Her eyes were contemptuous, her lips drawn into a tight line. "You can tell her some other time, Eric," she told him coldly, shoving him towards the door. "Right now you had better go."

Elaine rose angrily from the couch as Eric permitted himself to be pushed out of the apartment. She walked over to Jane as she slammed the door shut, eyes blazing.

"Just where do you get the idea you can put my friends out of this apartment?" she queried. "Good heavens, I don't know why you've taken such a dislike to Eric. Right now you acted as though you hated him."

"Despise is the better word," Jane said shortly, calmly surveying her. She moved slowly across the room. "Elaine, despite the animosity I had for him I never thought of Eric as a coward. But he is. When you were walking towards that thug Eric almost ran out of the room, he was so frightened."

Elaine laughed wildly. "So what? I was afraid, too, and so were you. And incidentally, where were you when all this was happening?"

Jane shrugged her shoulders. "Eric was holding me in front of him so that in case any bullets were fired he wouldn't be hit!"

In the stillness of the room Elaine could hear the beat of her heart as it throbbed within her breast. Her eyes were wide with astonishment, blazing with hate, as she glared at Jane. Hot words of denial sprang to her throat but they died there unuttered, for Jane's tense, tragic face was mute testimony that she had spoken the truth and was despising herself for ever having done so.

Eric was a coward? But—but it couldn't be true!" Surely he must have had a good reason for standing behind Jane. She searched eagerly for an explanation of his strange behavior and suddenly her eyes brightened. Why Eric must have been trying to pull Jane out of danger, trying to remove her from the line of fire. There certainly was nothing cowardly in that.

"He must have been trying to help you," she told Jane softly, anxiously. "I know that Eric isn't a coward."

Jane sighed and sank to the couch beside her, her manner sympathetic, but too honest to agree to the answer Elaine had so swiftly found.

"When you walked across the room towards the crook, Eric watched you for a moment, and then, when the thug raised his gun to fire, he ran over to me. Before I could do anything to help you Eric wrapped his arms around me and pulled me into a position that shielded him."

Elaine tapped her fingers slowly in her palm. Her face was inscrutable, the lashes on her eyes well down to hide from Jane any emotion she felt. She mustn't show Jane how sick she felt, she mustn't permit her roommate to even guess the anguish that was tearing her to pieces inside.

Eric a coward! How despicable, how horrible! And she she had fancied herself in love with him, imagined that she would happily spend the rest of her life with him! She was glad, insanely, fiercely glad that the crook had come into their apartment; glad that the thin veneer of polish had slipped from Eric to reveal him as he really was, a craven, despicable creature not fit to live, let alone marry!

Eric a coward! She could have withstood anything, suffered any hurt or insult he might inflict upon her, anything but the knowledge that he was spineless, a coward. She could never marry Eric now. She never wanted to see him again!

But—but of course she would marry him! There was something noble, something so close to saintliness about Elaine's face as she proudly raised her head that Jane, cynical, practical creature that she was, was forced to turn her eyes away. Eric was Eric, the man she loved, the man to whom she had given her heart for now and forever. Coward or no coward, she would still marry him. Love wasn't composed of rosy dreams, it wasn't just a happy-go-lucky, sure-fire means to happiness. Love was composed of other things, more solid things, things such as realizing a man's faults and loving him for or despite them. That was love, real love, not the love that fed upon heroics, but the common every-day variety of love; real love made forgiveness the best part of love.

Elaine's eyes were bright with unshed tears as she turned her head to face Jane, but her chin was proud, determined.

"Jane, would you mind not mentioning the subject again? It's something that I'll have to forget, something that we will have to forget. You see, I'm still going to marry Eric."

Before Jane could utter a word, Elaine rose swiftly from the couch and ran into the bedroom. It was not until the door was closed firmly behind her that she surrendered to her grief. And then the tears came, trickling down her cheeks to stain the bedspread. Eric a coward! Yes, she could forgive him even that; strange, but she knew that in her heart, she would never forget. She wondered dully if that was one of a woman's duties—to tuck all the undesirable traits in a man's character deep into her heart, to remember, but to forgive.

Her eyes were heavy when she awakened the following morning, and when she walked over to the mirrow a critical examination revealed huge purple circles beneath her eyelids. As she moved slowly towards the shower she felt dull, listless, almost as though the tears of the previous evening had completely drained her of energy. But she was glad that her grief had been so deep, for somehow it had the effect of numbing her heart.

Her eyes grew round with surprise as the bedroom opened and Jane, completely clothed, every curl of her head carefully in place, bustled briskly into the room.

"Breakfast will be ready in fifteen minutes," she warned cheerfully. "And you needn't look so surprised. I'm up because even artists sometimes have to see the sun."

With that she left and Elaine raced into the bathroom, chuckling as she stepped beneath the shower. Jane was apparently feeling brimful of energy and extremely ambitious or she would never have climbed from her bed at such an hour. Usually she didn't arise until almost noon. And then, as icy needles of water bit at her skin, Elaine recalled that both Eric and Melvyn were due to arrive at the house that morning.

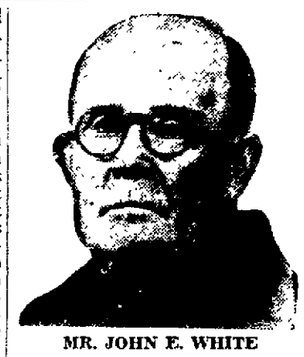
Contractor Says "My Back Was Aching All the Time"

After a day's work I would feel exhausted, legs and ankles often painful. Took Vendol and never had anything give such grand relief.



MR. JOHN E. WHITE

If there is a man or woman reading this who suffers from backache, sore painful muscles and joints, and aches throughout the body, this message is one that tells how to get relief. It comes from a highly responsible resident of this city and was given a few days ago to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store, with permission to publish it for the benefit of others who suffer from the same causes.

Mr. John E. White, well known Building Contractor who has done many big jobs in Mansfield, living at 95 Superior St., says: "I was constipated all the time, and believe all my troubles were due to this condition. When I started taking Vendol about three weeks ago I was suffering from awful backaches, and some nights, after being on my feet all day, when I removed my shoes I'd find my ankles puffed up and was seldom free of aching muscles and joints, even being an effort to straighten up when I stooped over.

"I would go to bed exhausted after a day's work, but would be restless, then awaken early in the morning and couldn't get back to sleep again.

"I was troubled a lot with sour stomach, gas, belching up little bits of undigested food, and a heavy feeling in my stomach.

"Vendol gave complete and easy relief from the constipation after which all my troubles gradually grew less till now I'm feeling as well as ever in my life. The relief this gave from backache and the painful muscles was wonderful and it's great to enjoy a long night of restful sleep again.

"I want to advise anyone suffering from the same condition as mine to start taking Vendol at once."

Rely upon Vendol, the favorite medicine of Mansfield residents for years. It is made from the finest grade roots and herbs with alkalines added for extra benefits. The action of Vendol is pleasant and prompt and what Vendol has done for other people, it can do for you if you will give it a chance.

See the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., and he will explain all about this reliable family medicine. Vendol is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

FORGOTTEN GREAT MAN

GALVESTON, Tex. —(AP)— An oil painting of a man of distinguished appearance has hung in the Galveston courthouse for 40 years but nobody seems to know who he was. The portrait now rests in the office of Charles Dibrell, district judge, who has been trying for five years to learn the identity of the man.

PERSONAL LOANS

HOW YOU CAN BORROW $100 IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $4.46 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, friendly service.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $500 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.46 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $4.46 a month for thirty months will also repay a $100 loan.

When you borrow at Household Finance, you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. The sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.26 each, or a total of only $105.04, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full. (All payments shown in the table include the charges. You pay nothing more.)

One rate to everyone

Household charges only one rate—the same to everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

All you do to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is to acquaint us with your problem. We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No questions regarding your credit are asked of friends or relatives—and you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get the money you need in a simple, private transaction.

Fair Treatment

Household shows every consideration to the borrower faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Find the loan you need in the first column of the table and read across. See how you can repay your loan with a small part of your pay check. Then phone or visit us. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

April 15, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

Marianne

And still we have winter . . . Most signs of our snowstorm last week have melted away, but it's still gloomy, damp and cold out, and certainly not the kind of weather to be wearing spring finery or taking a walk through the woods in search of wildflowers—but then I suppose our only hope is that it can't possibly last forever.

* * * * *

Although they already have a wide circle of friends in Mansfield (probably because they've been active golfers at Westbrook Country club for a good many years), Mr. and Mrs. Henry Talmage will increase their acquaintances here from now on, because they've taken up residence on Edgewood road. . . . They spent the better part of the winter vacationing in Hollywood, Fla., and only last week moved their family up from Mt. Gilead into a beautiful new home—certainly a nice thing to have awaiting you at the end of a southern sojourn, eh, Lucy?

* * * * *

DAVID OTT is more than proud of the pin he's wearing these days . . . He was initiated into Phi Gamma Delta fraternity at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor recently. . . . Dave, who's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Ott, is a student in the College of Pharmacy at the university.

* * * * *

These are busy and exciting days for Margaret Strickler, Lucy . . . She completed a course at the Mansfield Business Training school little more than a week ago, so then she and her sister, Frances, took a trip to New York City. . . . They visited with Peg's former roommate at the University of Michigan, Shuann Welch—whom I imagine you have met as she's been here on several occasions. . . . Then too, they saw our own Jane Wilson and attended one of her broadcasts with Fred Waring's band. . . . The girls returned home this past week-end, and Peg embarked on a new job at the Guarantee Title company today.

* * * * *

MR. AND MRS G W. DEYARMON returned from a four-months' vacation in Florida this past week-end, and they really were disappointed at finding snow still on the ground up here. . . . They wintered in West Palm Beach, and even though the weather wasn't as pleasant as it sometimes is, the thermometers registered as high as 81 during the last two weeks the DeYarmons were there—so the change from ocean bathing to snow was none too welcome. . . . They drove down, and on the way back stopped in Georgia to visit some sugar mills.

New Orleans has beckoned another group of Mansfielders . . . Mable Brown, Edna Eidenberger, Jessie Hayne and Ruth Griffith left this past week-end to drive to the southern city, and they will be gone for a week.

* * * * *

I must tell you about the party Mrs. Thomas Fenton (formerly of Lexington) gave in Chicago yesterday for her sister, Marjorie Lawrence. . . . Eighteen guests at the tea and shower learned of Marjorie's approaching marriage to Frederick Bates—and the best part about it all is that the wedding will take place at the Presbyterian church in Lexington on June 18. . . . I'm sure you know the bride-elect, Lucy, because she worked at the H. L. Reed company here before going to Chicago, where she is employed by Time magazine. . . . Mr. Bates (who was from Waterloo, Ia.) is a graduate of Ames college and is now affiliated with the Crane Manufacturing company in the design department in Chicago. . . . Marjorie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Lawrence, are going to Chicago for a visit soon, and then she will return to Lexington a week before her marriage.

* * * * *

LOTS of folks from our town attended one or more of the operas in Cleveland last week but Gilbert Ireland had the pleasure of hearing all of them as he spent the week in Cleveland. . . . He was joined on Saturday by his brother, George Ireland, who accompanied him to "La Traviata" that afternoon.

* * * * *

I'LL be looking for a letter from you real soon, Lucy, so you'd better get out your pen and paper.

Lovingly,

Marianne

PALMS, ferns, and baskets of cut flowers with illumination from tapers held in two seven-branch candelabras, made an attractive setting at First Baptist church, Galion, Sunday afternoon, when Wilma Jean Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hopkins of Galion, became the bride of Wayne Roush, 105 Heineman boulevard, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Roush of Strasburg.

Wearing a white satin gown fashioned princess style with sweetheart neckline, small buttons down the back and leg o' mutton sleeves, the bride was escorted up the church aisle by her father who gave her in marriage. Her finger-tip length veil was caught to a tiara trimmed with orange blossoms. Calla lilies and yellow roses fashioned her corsage.

Rev. H. K. Freeman, pastor of the church was assisted by Rev. Walter Roush of Dayton, Ohio, uncle of the bridegroom, in conducting the double ring ceremony before 150 friends and relatives.

Preceding the ceremony, the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. M. C. Hopkins, sang three numbers She was accompanied by Mildred Hartwell, organist, who also played nuptial music and the wedding marches. During the ceremony she played softly.

Marjorie Hopkins who was her sister's maid of honor, wore a gown of romance blue taffeta, fashioned after the Civil war period. With this she wore a dusty rose net bonnet with a wreath of forget-me-nots, and her corsage was pink tea roses and forget-me-nots.

Blake Roush of Strasburg was his brother's best man. The ushers were Maynard Hokpins, brother of the bride, and Clarence Court, both of Galion.

Mrs. Hopkins, mother of the bride, wore a dress of powder blue with dusty pink accessories, while the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Roush, was attired in a fuchsia colored dress. Both mothers wore corsages of red rosebuds and gardenias.

There were more than 50 guests present for the reception at the home of the bride's parents, after the wedding. Lighted tapers, cut flowers, and a large wedding cake were used for the wedding luncheon that was served.

Later when the couple left for a week's trip to Washington, D. C., the new Mrs. Roush wore a nile green wool suit with grey fox fur trim, and accessories of beige and green. When they return their address will be 181½ Penn avenue.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Dear Miss Carman," I said earnestly, "won't you please believe me that I have wanted to come to see you long before this? But circumstances have kept me away. Indeed, my visit today could not have been made except for a belief in your discretion and your patriotism, on which I am counting for the solving of a most difficult problem.

I could see the muscles of her body tense as she lifted her head and looked at me appraisingly. I knew what that gaze meant. She was questioning the sincerity of my statement, wondering if I were attempting to make a convenience of her.

"Suppose we sit down while you tell me about it," she said quietly.

"Thank you," I said, and as she took her seat behind the tea table, Lillian and I took the chairs she indicated. I did not speak for fully a second, devoting any histrionic power I might possess to giving the impression that something of tremendous moment was troubling me. When the old women's eyes rounded with excitement I began to speak, slowly, impressively.

"Before I tell you anything," I said, "I must ask you if anyone is within hearing."

Her head went up and her eyes were suddenly alert.

"No one now," she said. "In a few minutes Maria will come in with the tea, but she will knock first, and the doors are heavy. She can hear nothing from the hall if you speak in moderately low tones. And — my hearing is excellent. I can hear you, no matter how low your voice is pitched."

"Then," I said, slowly, "I will now tell you what is troubling me. First, however—" I hesitated—"you may not be able to grant the request I am about to make of you, but—"

"I will save you the trouble of finishing that sentence," she said, smiling faintly. "May I assure you now that whether or not I can grant your request, whatever you say in this room is inviolate. I shall never repeat it to anyone."

"I knew that," I said smiling back at her, "or I never should have come to you. And I did not intend to ask you for a specific promise."

"That was the reason I gave you one," she retorted whimsically, and then Maria's knock sounded upon the door, and Miss Carman threw up a tiny admonitory hand.

"Won't it be possible to wait until after our tea for our discussion?" she asked.

One Mother Solves Her Problem

Never has there been a more popular subject for discussion in this column than the one brought about by a letter from a woman, a high school graduate, with a year in a business college, who was confronted with the problem of seeing her children suffer from actual want or giving them away for adoption.

The interesting part of this discussion has been the innumerable letters which have come from people once similarly situated. Mothers have told how they kept the home fires burning and the wolf from the door by evolving ways and means for making a little extra money. Today we will give one woman's letter hoping it may offer suggestions to other people, fortunate enough to have the use of a farm.

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Perhaps my experience as a vegetable gardener may help some woman confronted as I was with the problem of rearing three fatherless children. When my husband died, we had a rundown farm which had not been worked or fertilized for several years.

"Nearby there was road-building and also a low-cost housing project. There were several boarding houses and tourist camps in the neighborhood, and the women who kept these houses fell back on canned goods and a can-opener. I thought it might be a good idea to raise fresh vegetables and small fruits. I interviewed several of these boarding-house keepers, and they agreed to take my vegetables if they were attractive looking and not too expensive.

"We plowed and fertilized the ground, put in plants, seeds, and some ever-bearing raspberries.

"I tried a new wrinkle with my vegetable raising. I borrowed cookbooks from our nearby public library, copied ways of cooking vegetables in the most appetizing and novel fashion. I wrote out the recipes on my old typewriter, and these I turned in to the housekeepers who bought my vegetables.

"We didn't become millionaires, but we made enough to get by on. Nine hundred and twenty-seven dollars to be exact, and as we were out little besides taxes, clothing and food apart from what we raised, we managed to get by.

"My son, aged 13, delivered the vegetables in a little express wagon. I paid the neighbor with several boxes of raspberries for taking me in to the nearby town to read up the cooking recipes in the public library and do a few errands. Well, Miss Fairfax, God helps those who help themselves.

"If that mother, who's thinking of giving up her children, will think as hard as I did about ways and means of keeping the family together, I think she'll win out.

"HUSTLING MOTHER."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, April 16.

The lunar aspects for this day may be said to accelerate activity in business and in private interests, with much stirring in new channels of endeavor and in connection with social, cultural, domestic or affectional relations. But while definite headway and some gratifications may be expected, there will be decided opposition from elders or other tenacious obstacles with which to cope. This may best be done by patience, prudence, perseverance and tact.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of fairly progressive and productive influences, with new projects moving forward and affairs of a social, artistic, domestic and romantic nature gaining ground. But some hostility may come from elders and others who are ill-disposed. To meet this successfully, employ finesse and be prudent, patient and quietly persistent.

A child born on this day may be practical and constructive in substantial and commonplace ways, as well as in art, music, drama or other creative forms of expression. It may be studious, systematic and painstaking.

Chowder Good Supper Dish

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Chowder suppers, popular with most folks, require a minimum of preparation for the homemaker.

Here's a chowder to be made with canned corn, canned tomatoes, evaporated milk — staples right off the pantry shelf. Recipe for six servings uses two ounces salt pork, one small sliced onion, one No. 2 can corn, two cups diced potatoes, No. 2 can tomatoes, teaspoon salt, tablespoon sugar, pepper, quart boiling water, one and two-thirds cups evaporated milk, large crackers. Cut pork into small pieces and fry slowly to a golden brown in a large saucepan. Add onion and cook slowly without browning for five minutes. Add corn, tomtoes, potatoes in alternate layers. Sprinkle with salt, sugar and pepper, then add water and cook slowly until potatoes are tender, about 20 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in the milk slowly. Pour over crackers in large soup plates.

Potato Chowder is tasty and a change from the usual fish chowders. For six servings use one cup each diced potatoes and diced onions, one-fourth teaspoon salt, four finely-crushed peppercorns, one cup top milk, two tablespoons melted butter, one and one-half tablespoons flour, one-third cup chopped dill pickles. Place potatoes, onions, salt and pepper in kettle. Cover with about two cups cold water. Bring to a boil and simmer, tightly covered, one-half hour. Add milk and blend of butter and flour and simmer five minutes longer, stirring constantly until thickened. Add pickles just before serving.

Favorite of Many.

Manhattan Corn Chowder is the favorite of many and here is a swell recipe for it. For six servings use one-half cup each diced onions and diced potatoes, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one cup cream corn, one chopped pimiento, one and one-half cups top milk, two tablespoons melted butter, two tablespoons flour and one-half cup chopped dill pickles. Place onions, potatoes, salt and pepper in a kettle. Cover with cold water, about one cup. Bring to boil and simmer, tightly covered, one-half hour. Add corn, pimiento and milk. Blend butter and flour, add to mixture and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Simmer five minutes longer. Add pickles just before serving.

Duchess Soup winds up today's recipes. To serve four to six, use two tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, tablespoon minced onion, four cups milk, two tablespoons butter, one-half cup grated American cheese and two tablespoons chopped parsley. Combine tapioca, salt, pepper, onion and milk in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly-boiling water and cook about ten minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add butter, cheese and parsley, and cook until cheese is melted.

To garnish soups, sprinkle with chopped parsley, a dash of paprika, a few croutons, grated cheese or a few tiny round crackers. Or place a spoonful of whipped cream in center and sprinkle with a dash of paprika or chopped parsley. This adds color as well as flavor.

New Jersey Federation of Women's clubs began agitating for a woman's college in 1911. In 1918 it became a reality with 54 students and one building, a remodeled residence. Today it has more than 1,000 students. Two of its fine buildings were built with funds raised by the federation, whose president is on the college board.

Dyes Still Risky To Use

By MME. QUI VIVE

Blonds and brunettes who would be red-tressed might as well know that henna is not to be trusted. Henna is an herb, does no harm to the hairshafts, as do some bleaching agents, but it isn't safe to monkey with it unless you know the proper ways and means of application. Some of those purplish-redheads you see now and then are the results of home dyeing. They aren't pretty.

If the glorious crown is a mixture of white and blond or white and drab, the casual use of henna may spit it with brick red, pink, even orange. Every beauty shop owner has had to put such dreadful looking heads in form again. What the experimenter can do to herself with the aid of coloring agents is sad to relate.

Hair dyeing is one of the most difficult lines taken up by the beauty student. Schools that train operators give more time to that than any other department. The operator must have a knowledge of the chemicals used. The work can be beautifully done, be perfectly satisfactory to the supplicant for locks or another shade; but the one who does it must be an expert.

Yet women, knowing nothing about such matters, go on pouring troubles on their heads.

They come to their greatest griefs when they apply one dye atop another. Professionals condition the hair, use dye removers before changing the medium. There's no way for the amateur to know what the results of mixing chemicals will be. In the long run, it is money and worry saved to consult an operator of good reputation who knows what he's about.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BLACKWOOD'S PURPOSE

ARTIFICIAL slam conventions are not, as many believe, primarily to help you bid slams which are in the cards. They are more valuable as saving you from bidding slams which cannot be made. That is especially true of the Blackwood convention devised by Easley Blackwood of Cincinnati. When used properly, it protects you from plenty of unmakable slams. If abused, it can cost you plenty of points.

1. ♠ A K 6 4 ♥ A 8 5 ♦ Q 6 3 ♣ 7 4 2	2. ♠ A K 6 5 4 ♥ K 8 ♦ Q 6 3 ♣ 7 4 2
3. ♠ A K 6 5 4 ♥ K 7 ♦ Q J 10 6 3 ♣ 6	4. ♠ A K Q 5 4 ♥ K 7 ♦ K Q J 8 6 ♣ 6
5. ♠ A K Q 5 4 ♥ None ♦ Q J 10 6 2 ♣ 8 7 4	6 ♠ A K J 5 4 ♥ None ♦ Q J 10 6 2 ♣ A 7 4

If you are using the Blackwood convention, and started the bidding with 1-Spade, your partner responding with 3-Spades, what do you do with each of the above hands?

With either of the first two, you have not enough above a minimum opening bid to consider inviting a slam, so merely bid 4-Spades. If he invites slam with the Blackwood 4-No Trumps, you of course must give the conventional answers, 5-Clubs, showing no aces; 5-Diamonds, one; 5-Hearts, two; 5-Spades, three; 5-No Trumps, four. If he follows your reply with 5-No Trumps, you show no kings with 6-Clubs, one with 6-Diamonds, two with 6-Hearts, three with 6-Spades, four with 6-No Trumps.

With No. 3, after your partner's spade jump, bid 4-No Trumps. If his answer shows three aces, ask about kings with 5-No Trumps. If he shows two aces, bid 6-Spades if you feel confident, and sign off at 5-Spades if you don't. If he shows only one, sign off at 5-Spades. With No. 4, if he shows one ace, sign off at 5-Spades; if two, bid 6-Spades; if three, bid 7-No Trumps.

Don't use the Blackwood on hands like Nos. 5 or 6. With No. 5 hint at slam with 5-Spades, putting it up to him to do as he wishes. With No. 6, hint at slam with an ace-showing cue bid of 4-Clubs. If he bids 5-Diamonds, as a shower of that ace, bid 6-Spades; if 4-Hearts, sign off at 4-Spades; if 4-Spades, pass.

Principal Opposes P. T. A. Unit

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

ALTHOUGH an occasional local Parent-Teacher Association will wander from its legitimate objective, I have always been enthusiastic over the purposes and possibilities of this organization. At its best the PTA interprets the home to the school and the school to the home, helping bridge the gap between the two. The good PTA devotes its major efforts to furthering more intelligent parenthood, so the school might have good materials out of which to build still better citizens.

From a city of several hundred thousand souls, the following letter came to me:

"My dear Dr. Myers—Being second vice-president of the — Council, it is my job to organize new Parent-Teacher Associations. But I find my principal is opposed to having one, either fearing more work or interference in the administration of the school. Telling him of our policy doesn't seem to help, though our superintendent is very much in favor."

This paragraph would describe a good many other cities.

A good many principals who don't want a PTA organized just don't know what it is all about. They have little or no appreciation of home-school co-operation. They still think of the school as a separate institution. For them there might as well be no home except to supply "child fodder" for their school machine. It has not yet percolated their little heads that a child is a continuous personality whose emotions have their wellsprings in the home; that the child who comes to school is not merely the physical entity he seems to be, but a feeling child with heart strings tied to the home. Oh, yes, there are a few who know these things but don't believe the PTA is the proper means for promoting them.

Of course, some school administrators have had unfortunate experiences with a PTA, or know of others who have had. Most meddling groups of this type have not been PTA's at all. They just took the liberty to call themselves by that name. They are "bootleg" PTA's, belonging neither to the state nor national body. Therefore, they easily can be led astray and violate the ideals of the real Parent-Teacher Association.

All we can do is to gain these few opponents by slow persuasion, proving to them that the PTA does work for the best interest of school and home.

Then there are school principals who regard the PTA as a kind of Santa Claus to supply school equipment—pianos, curtains, radios. But this is the function of the Board of Education, not the PTA. Usually the more the PTA spends on things at school, the less it spends on thoughts about better parent-teacher relationships, better parenthood, better children. The more it spends on things that perish, the less it spends on the imperishables. Let's help our PTA to save its soul.

PTA study groups and individual parents who would like to receive a list of book and pamphlets on child guidance and family relationships should write me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

DRIVING RIGHTS OF 43 REVOKED BY MUNY COURT

Six Months Report Reveals Reckless Driving Caused Most Suspensions.

Forty-three automobile drivers have lost their driving rights for periods ranging from 30 days to one year for traffic violations, through Mansfield municipal court convictions, a report compiled by the state bureau of motor vehicles showed today.

The report revealed suspensions and revocation of licenses from Oct. 1, 1939 to March 31 and showed 111 convictions for violation of the traffic code.

Major portion of convictions for which licenses were suspended for various periods ranging from 30 days to six months was careless and reckless driving. A total of 79 drivers were charged with this offense.

Drunk driving was listed second in the number for which drivers licenses were revoked. Twenty-four automobile operators were penalized by the loss of their driving right for one year in addition to a fine invoked by the court.

Four drivers lost their operator's permits for failure to stop after an accident during the five-month period and four others were convicted on miscellaneous charges.

Municipal court records revealed that the major portion of the arrests on traffic violations were made within the Mansfield district by the state highway patrol.

THEATERS

Laughton and Leigh.

Charles Laughton, who's run the gamut of odd characters all the way from the merry monarch of "Henry, the Eighth" to the piece of human driftwood of "The Beachcomber," undertakes his most novel portrayal of all in his latest vehicle, "Sidewalks of London." He's co-starred with the notorious Vivien Leigh. Laughton plays the role of a "busker," which is a London street entertainer who sings, dances and clowns for pennies donated by strollers and theatergoers. Miss Leigh will be seen at the Madison as a feminine "busker" and his tempestuous sweetheart. "Geronimo," an Indian picture, is the co-feature.

Star Maker.

Bing Crosby, who had the title role in "The Star Maker," is living up to it by helping many young players on their way to screen fame. One of the latest to benefit from appearing with Bing is Benny Inocencio, 11-year-old South Sea Island native, who is seen with him in "Road to Singapore," the film showing at the Ohio theater. Dorothy Lamour and Bob Hope are co-starred. This picture tells how Bing and Bob sing their way down to the land of Goona Goona to avoid the ladies only to fall in love with Dorothy.

"Disputed Passage"

Miss Lamour may also be seen at the Majestic theater beginning Tuesday in "Disputed Passage." This story, written by Lloyd Douglas, has as a leading character, a doctor who thinks love the greatest menace to a young scientist's career, played by Akim Tamiroff. John Howard, as the handsome young doctor, has as his favorite patient, Dorothy Lamour. The co-feature is "Another Thin Man," with William Powell, Myrna Loy and William Poulsen in the leading roles.

The Cat and the Canary.

Moviegoers who dare movie-makers to thrill them and at the same time amuse them will meet the cinematic answer to challenge in "The Cat and the Canary," co-starring Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard, which shows at the Ritz theater through Tuesday. The feature attraction is "Gulliver's Travels," a technicolor animated cartoon, taken from the immortal book by Jonathan Swift. This brilliant 18th century clergyman and author, wrote his tale as a biting satire upon human weaknesses in general and his country's political institutions in particular.

Two For Excitement.

How a lad with a penchant for over-statement causes a romantic tangle and sends a whole Latin-American community into a business boom is the gay subject of "Escape to Paradise," the latest picture starring Bobby Breen, the singer. Kent Taylor, Marla Shelton and Joyce Compton are in the supporting cast. This picture and "His Girl Friday" are the shows at the Park theater. Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell are co-starred in this hilarious news yarn.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

PLANT NOW FOR FALL STRAWBERRIES

Plant now if you would like to eat strawberries from your own garden this fall. You must plant the Ever-Bearing variety, however, if you want to feast on the berries at a time when other people are thinking of their coal and wood piles.

For setting out purposes young plants which have a well developed root system of light-colored, fibrous roots, a plump crown, and but few leaves, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Do not make the mistake of planting strawberries in newly turned sod land, for if you do the plants are likely to be eaten by white grubs or wire worms. Strawberries do best in an acid soil which is well drained, also rich in organic matter.

In the years preceding the World war, annual remittances to Italy by Italian emigrants amounted to 20,000,000 pounds sterling, according to Dr. Paul H. Wueller of Pennsylvania State college.

SPRING'S RETURN SPURS ACTIVITY AT FLYING FIELD

Mansfield Pilots Expect Two New Planes Within Month; New Hangar Underway.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

The return of spring to Mansfield has signalled the way for renewed activity at the municipal airport. Planes are again out on the line and the "hangar flying" days are over.

There's been plenty of coming and going the past week. At least 10 visiting fliers dropped into the port, among them State Director of Aeronautics Earl L. Johnson, who flew in from Columbus Thursday to address a Kiwanis club luncheon meeting.

Johnson isn't one of those fellows who just holds down an office in the capital, he practices what he preaches, flying over the state in the aeronautics department's Waco cabin ship.

Parcel, one of the "graduates" of Mansfield flying circles, had made a cross-country hop to Wright field in Dayton in one of the government's huge bombers.

"Bud" Lucas, a test pilot for the Lockheed aircraft corporation at Burbank, Calif., also dropped in for a visit while stopping off with relatives in Mansfield. He had just delivered a new bomber to the U. S. army base at Miami, Fla.

Two new planes have been purchased by Mansfield pilots and will be delivered about May 8.

Of course, there's nothing unusual about that but there is about the ships—they have no carburetors. Instead they are equipped with fuel injectors, a mechanism developed by airplane manufacturers for reducing gasoline consumption and eliminates the carburetor heater for de-icing the unit.

The craft are new Luscombes—a light all-metal cabin plane. One purchased by Airport Manager "Bud" Harrington is to be equipped with all the instruments for "blind flying." It will be the first light plane in Mansfield to carry this equipment.

"Bud" says the ship will be used for training pilots in instrument flying.

The other Luscombe was purchased by the Mansfield Flying club, and will be used for sport.

With the new planes due work will be speeded up this week on the new $7,000 fireproof hangar that's under construction at the port.

Foundations are already in and the steel girders are on the job. It is hoped that workmen this week will hoist the framework into place begin placing the siding.

When completed the hangar will provide housing facilities for 13 airplanes.

Two new students were enrolled last week for flying instruction. They are William Hayes and Frederick DeLong.

H. E. Odell, sales promotion manager for the Harrington Air service and Paul Gimble, chief mechanic, were in Cleveland last week to attend an American Airlines traffic meeting at the Hotel Carter.

Flying activity will be stepped up next month when the Civil Aeronautics Authority flying course is started for the 10 students and five alternates who will be selected to take the instructions.

Final exams will be given the 50 students enrolled in the ground course on April 22 at the senior high school. Major E. H. Jose, Chicago, private flying specialist for the C. A. A. will fly here to conduct the exams.
